The First, Best Christmas Night

Like small curled feathers, white and soft,
The little clouds went by,
Across the moon, and past the stars,
And down the western sky;
In upland pastures, where the grass
With frosted dew was white,
Like snowy clouds the young sheep lay,
That first, best Christmas night.

The shepherds slept; and, glimmering faint,
With twist of thin, blue smoke,
Only their fire's crackling flames
The tender silence broke—
Save when a young lamb raised his head,
Or, when the night wind blew,
A nesting bird would softly stir,
Where dusky olives grew—

With finger on her solemn lip,
Night hushed the shadowy earth,
And only stars and angels saw
The little Saviour's birth;
Then came such flash of silver light
Across the bending skies,
The wondering shepherds woke, and hid
Their frightened, dazzled eyes!

And all their gentle sleepy flock
Looked up, then slept again,
Nor knew the light that dimmed the stars
Brought endless peace to men—
Nor even heard the gracious words
That down the ages ring—
“The Christ is born! the Lord has come,
Good-will on earth to bring!”

Then o'er the moonlit, misty fields,
Dumb with the world's great joy,
The shepherds sought the white-walled town,
Where lay the baby boy—
And oh, the gladness of the world,
The glory of the skies,
Because the longed-for Christ looked up
In Mary's happy eyes!

Christmas Gift Book Suggestions

"He that loveth a book will never want a faithful friend, a wholesome counselor, a cheerful companion, an effectual comforter."

In buying books as Christmas remembrances, it is well to realize that in this day of small rooms and crowded homes, the only books worth keeping are the best books. The recent popular novel is only one more thing to be gotten rid of next spring, and so if one considers making a gift of books, let him be certain that he buy the best.

LITTLE BOOKS ON THE ART OF LIVING

Bennett, Arnold. How to Live on 24 Hours a Day.

"Brief essay, brilliantly written, and at the same time full of excellent, practical advice."—A. L. A. Booklist.

Gleason, A. H. Spirit of Christmas.

"This little book shows how the reign of the Lord of Christmas week can be extended over all weeks."

James, Wm. Habit.

A chapter from his Psychology, devoted to habits good and bad, showing how good ones may be built up and bad ones inhibited.

Stevenson, R. L. A Christmas Sermon.

Thomas à Kempis. Imitation of Christ.

BIOGRAPHY

Barrie, J. M. Margaret Ogilvy.

Franklin, Benjamin. Autobiography.

"Not only one of the most widely read and readable books in our language, but has the distinction of enriching the literature of nearly every other."—A. L. A. Catalog.

Howells, W. D. My Mark Twain.

"A delightful record of a friendship which extended over forty-five years, with a kindly and just appreciation of Mark Twain's personality and work, of both of which Mr. Howells has many fortunate and new things to say."—A. L. A. Booklist.

Thompson, Francis. Shelley: An Essay.

Christmas Gift Book Suggestions—Continued

Wiggin, K. D. Child's Journey With Dickens.

"A little book—only thirty-one pages—in which is told the story of a brief railway journey which the author took with Dickens when she was a little girl and when he was lecturing in the states."—Book Review Digest.

TRAVEL

Grenfell, W. T. Adrift On an Ice-pan.

"Simple and modest recital of the author's experiences and emotions while drifting out to sea for a day and a night on a block of 'sish,' or crushed ice."—C. J. Blake.

Johnston, Clifton. Highways and Byways of the Great Lakes.

"Chatty, superficial but readable descriptions of places in seven states and in Canada bordering on the Great Lakes."—A. L. A. Booklist.

VanDyke, Henry. Out-of-doors in the Holy Land.

"Chapters describing sights, experiences, and feelings attending a caravan journey through Palestine."—A. L. A. Catalog.

White, S. E. African Camp Fires.

"Simple, spontaneous account of episodes occurring on a hunting trip through British East Africa, interspersed with information as to its scenery and people."—Wisconsin Library Bulletin.

POETRY

Housman, A. E. Shropshire Lad.

"Poetry which is the very music of the world. In Mr. Housman's lovely verses the words cannot conceivably be changed."—Nation.

Masefield, John. Story of a Round-house and Other Poems.

"The passage of the Horn in a terrific storm is unsurpassed in English narrative poetry, as a seapicture of awful and impressive terror."—Boston Transcript.

Noyes, Alfred. Comp. Poet's Anthology of Poems.

Omar Khayyam. Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, by Edward Fitzgerald.

Palgrave, F. T. Golden Treasury: Selected from the best songs and lyrical poems in the English language.

Service, R. W. Spell of the Yukon, and other verse.

Tagore, Rabindranath. The gardener; tr. by the author from the original Bengali.

"Pretty and gentle and shot through occasionally with deeper meanings."—Nation.

Whitman, Walt. Little Book of Nature Thoughts; ed. by A. M. Traubel.

"The selections are made with rare judgment and wise discrimination, and it is to be hoped that they will open the door to many who have not understood or have passed by Whitman's persistent tribute to the spiritual side of man?"—Boston Transcript.

ESSAYS AND SELECTIONS

Black, Hugh. Happiness.

Burroughs, John. Wake-robin.

Crothers, S. M. By the Christmas Fire.

- VanDyke, Henry. Story of the Other Wise Man.

DESK BOOKS

Webster's Collegiate Dictionary.

This list was compiled from various Christmas lists which may be consulted in the library.

BOOKS OF 1915

The short list here given is made up from the books bought and used in our own library during 1915. Only a few titles could be listed and no attempt has been made to give an exhaustive list. If you do not find here the name of some recent book which you wish to buy, come to the library and we shall be glad to give you any information as to price and publisher.

Abbott, E. H. Indiscreet Letter.

This charming little story is very suitable for the Christmas gift with teaching of the whole world's kinship. It might be given to a young girl or woman who loves a sweetly sentimental story.

Bonner, G. Girls At Central.

A good detective story that will appeal to a younger brother who is fond of Doyle and other mystery tales. The story is remarkably clever in that the mystery is concealed to the very end.

Burnett. Lost Prince.

This is a child's book and one of Mrs. Burnett's own charming stories. It would be suitable for a boy or girl from 11 to 16 years of age. It tells the life of a little prince who does not know he is one and gives his experiences and his travels through Europe.

Cabot. Prescriptions.

These prescriptions could be a great help to an older business man, for their suggestions are sane and practical and their writer is a successful physician.

Churchill, Winston. A Far Country.

Again Mr. Churchill has given us a book to think about and this would make a desirable gift for an older man or woman whose interest goes beyond the mere love interest of a story.

Ferber, Edna. Emma McChesney & Co.

This book will be a favorite for anyone who has worked. Into it in addition to the usual fun and good cheer of her books, Edna Ferber has put much good hard common sense as a working basis for all womankind.

Rinehart, M. R. "K"

Undoubtedly this is the best novel on Mrs. Rinehart's list. The love interest for once over-balances the mystery and makes an exceedingly popular book for a young girl.

Webster, Jean. Dear Enemy.

The latest book by the author of "Daddy-long-legs" is also concerned with orphans and is illustrated with the same drawings which made Judy's letters so interesting. This book will interest any girl or woman.

Wilson, Woodrow. When a Man Comes to Himself.

An excellent inspirational essay short and to the point. It would be an appropriate gift to any young man who is beginning business and to many who have begun.

Gift Books for Children

Great as is the importance of careful choice of books for adults, the value of the right books for children can not be overestimated. It is necessary for our children to have the imaginative happenings and wonder stories, for they read and reread their first books many times and they become true friends.

It is useless to expect a child to like good literature for itself, if it is put up in an unattractive and ugly form. The only way to reach the younger children is by pictures and now days no one has an excuse for giving a child ugly picture books, when the publishing houses offer such a wealth of charmingly illustrated volumes at moderate prices.

It is not practical to give here an exhaustive list of the best books for children, but if you do not find what you want, come to the library and we shall be glad to give you the Christmas book lists issued by the various publishers and libraries which are very suggestive and full of attractive titles.

Under the following headings, we have listed a few of the choice editions at moderate prices for children.

PICTURE BOOKS AND EASY READING

Aesop. Fables in Words of One Syllable.

Brook. Golden Goose Book.

Browning, R. Pied Piper of Hamelin, illus. by Hope Dunlap.

Holbrook, F. Hiawatha Alphabet.

Mother Goose, illustrated by Kate Greenaway.

Stevenson's Child's Garden of Verses.

Good Stories for Boys

Call Numbers are for Books in the Chicago Public Library.
(*Indicates Books in Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s Collection.)

Adams, A. Wells Brothers, the Young Cattle Kings .....	H7083
A wholesome story of two boys left alone by their father's death, on a homestead in Kansas twenty-five years ago. They shelter a wounded cattle man and from the start given them by friendly passing drovers, come to be successful ranchmen.
Adventures of Pirates and Sea Rovers.....	H4285
These stories of adventure under the Black Flag and in the days of Queen Elizabeth and James I, satisfy the demand for pirate stories. They are written in lively style by different authors, and are founded mainly on deeds that have shaped history.
Aldrick. Story of a Bad Boy.....	H140
A happy-hearted, humorous record of the author's New England boyhood.
Allen, C. F. David Crockett, Scout.....	C21429
A clear, simple and well written account of the romantic life of this great pioneer hero.
Andrews, M. R. S. Perfect Tribute.....	F10562
A short story of Lincoln's Gettysburg speech. It is well worth reading.
Bartlett, F. O. Forest Castaways.....	H7306
The adventures of two city boys who accompany the father of one of them on a winter outing and are lost in the woods. They come upon a deserted cabin which contains food for their immediate needs and are joined by an escaped convict who proves to be an innocent man, a good woodsman and a most valuable friend during their weeks of enforced stay in the wilderness.
Brady, C. T. Northwestern Fights and Fighters.	B2238
Personal accounts by Indian chiefs and others of the various Indian wars in the northwest. Entertaining reading for men and boys.

Brady, C. T. The Conquest of the Southwest... B2313

Under this title are included the events from 1819-1850, including the Texan revolution with its tragedy of the Alamo, and the Mexican war.

Brooks. Boy Settlers. Early Times in Kansas.. H1068

Read also: "The Boy Emigrants"..... H1066

Brooks, E. S. Master of the Strong Hearts..... H3269

How a boy redeemed his promise to Sitting Bull.

Brooks, E. S. Swordmaker's Son.

Story of a Jewish boy in the time of Christ.

Caldwell. Wolf the Storm Leader..... F11572

The story of an Alaskan wolf who becomes leader of a mail carrier's dog train, and after many adventures in the far north, leads the team on a journey from Nome to Washington, D. C.

*Camp, W. C. Captain Danny.....

A baseball story sequel to "Danny Fists." Interest centers in Captain Danny who leads his team to victory in spite of "Marty" the coach, a professional player who does not know how to handle boys. The fine spirit of Danny, the way he holds the team together, and the timely appearance of the much loved old coach make up a good, wholesome story.

*Camp, W. C. The Substitute..... H3393

The freshman hero wins the game for Yale, but the story is secondary to the discussion of football tactics. A book for older boys, by a prominent athlete and advocate of clean sport.

*Camp, W. C. Danny Fists..... H3396

The story of Danny Fists, so nick-named, a red-headed lad with football brains and a hot temper, whose school life at Manor Hall consists mainly of football.

Carruth, H. Track's End..... H3437

A matter-of-fact account of the thrilling adventures of a boy of 18 who remained all winter in a deserted town in what is now South Dakota, to protect his employer's property, with only a dog and a cat for company. Indians, coyotes and outlaws figure in the tale. The local color is extremely good and some of the incidents are matters of history.

*Clemens, S. L. Tom Sawyer..... F323

Humorous and clever study of natural, untamed interests of boys—such incidents as mysterious caves, grave-robbing, midnight marauding, smoking, superstition, early loves, vagabond life, treasure finding, and robber-gangs with secret and bloody oaths.

*Clemens, S. L. Adventures of Huckleberry Finn. F2797

*Clemens, S. L. A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court ..... F2799

*Clemens, S. L. Innocents Abroad.

Collins. Moonstone ..... F12090

Collins, Woman in White..... F259

Comfort, W. L. Routledge Rides Alone..... F12093

A high-keyed and romantic story of the English War correspondents in the field.

*Grey, Zane. The Young Lion Hunter.

Ken Ward, hero of the Young Forester, and his younger brother, spend an exciting summer with the ranger, Dick Leslie, hunting mountain lions in the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

*Grey, Zane. The Young Pitcher.....H4070

The hero of "The Young Forester" reappears in this exceptionally good story of college and college athletics. Two good descriptions of baseball games are told with more than average accuracy, spirit and purity of English.

*Grey, Zane. The Young Forester.....H4069

Story of the adventures of a boy who goes to Arizona to join a friend, a government ranger, in the forestry service. It is full of hair-breadth escapes, but its glimpses of outdoor life and its attitude toward the humane side of hunting and trapping make it interesting.

*Grinnell, G. B. Jack, the Young Trapper.....H4073

Gives an account of a summer spent in the Colorado Parks, in following up streams and trapping beaver. Many suggestions are made regarding methods of trapping and camp life.

Grinnell, George. Jack in the Rockies.....H1407

A boy's adventures with a pack train.

Grinnell, George. Jack, the Young Canoeman...H4075

An account of a canoe trip along the coast of British Columbia.

Hale, E. E. Man Without a Country.....F13479

Hare. Philip Kent.

Harris, G. Joe, the Book Farmer.

A southern boy makes a phenomenal success by fertilization of four acres of poor land given him by his father. Good story for boys interested in agriculture.

Harte, F. B. The Luck of Roaring Camp.....J105

Hill, G. B. Young Farmer.

The boy has a great responsibility thrust upon him in the form of a run down farm. By his pluck, good sense, perseverance, and study he manages to make a success of the farm.

Holland, R. S. Boy Scouts of Birch Bark Island.H4316

*Hope, Anthony. Prisoner of Zenda.....F4231

Hough, E. Young Alaskans.....H4328

Three boys cast adrift in a dory in one of the most dangerous spots on the Alaskan coast show their knowledge of hunting, fishing, managing boats and Indians, and have many exciting adventures before they are rescued.

business who did something besides make money.

Pier. Boys of St. Timothy's.....H2114

Pier. Crashaw Brothers.....H5680

Pier, A. S. Grannis of the Fifth.

A St. Timothy story. Alfred Grannis arrived at the school two months after both his parents were killed in a railroad accident. The first boy he met was Dan Todd, a very bumptious lad. The story is interesting, has much about school athletics, and more than usual about study.

Pier. Harding of St. Timothy's.....H5681

A story of a preparatory school boy, which appeared in the Youths' Companion. It is thoroughly manly in tone.

Pier, A. S. Jester of St. Timothy's.....H5683

The jester is a prankish, clever boy who makes the life of an inexperienced young teacher in a boys' school a burden, but proves in the end to be a very manly and likeable lad.

Pier, A. S. The New Boy.....H5682

Another story of St. Timothy's, the young western hero introducing an entirely fresh element in the school. He wins his way in athletics and gains many friends among the boys.

"Gold-Bug" and detective tales.

*Poole. The Harbor.

Post. Harvard Stories.....F9660

Good Stories for Boys—Continued

Pyle. Men of Iron.....F5989

Myles Falworth, the hero of this story, is the son of a great lord of fallen fortunes. The boy is sent from the retreat of his parents to the castle of the powerful Earl of Mockworth, who is in secret his father's friend, to receive knightly training. He early learns knighthood and then devotes himself to the restoration of his blind father to those honors and possessions of which the latter has been unjustly deprived. His love affair with the Lady Anne ends happily.

Pyle. Otto of the Silver Hand.....H2103

A tale of the robber barons of Germany. The boy Otto, whose instinctive gentle spirit and strong sense of right has been fostered in a monastery, is suddenly plunged into a deadly feud. He is captured by his father's enemy and imprisoned in a castle. Finally he is rescued and becomes a member of the Emperor's household. When grown, he marries the one time little girl, who helped lighten his imprisonment and thus ends the end.

Pyle. Story of Jack Ballister's Fortunes.....F6008

Narrative of the adventures of a young gentleman of good family, who was kidnapped and carried to the plantations of Virginia, where he fell in with that famous pirate, Capt. Edward Treach, or Blackbeard; of his escape from the pirates and the rescue of a young girl from out their hands.

*Quirk. Freshman Eight.

An unusually jolly story, crowded with adventures which has the right sort of college spirit and the kind of pluck that keeps the crew in training after the "gym" has burned down.

Quirk, L. W. Freshmen Friends.

A misunderstanding on arrival at college opens a way for Tod, who wants to mix with boys, to trade "Luxury Suite" with Tweedie, a poor boy, who longs for a taste of ease. Life at college, especially the athletic side, is pictured in an entertaining manner.

*Quirk, L. W. Third Strike.

The third of the series following Freshman Eight. The spirit of fair play is insisted upon and also efficiency.

*Quirk, L. W. The Fourth Down.....H5884

Story of a freshman in a middle west college football team whose lesson in sacrificing individual ambition to "team work" is an important part of his year's varied experiences.

Quirk, L. W. Baby Elton, Quarterback.....H5886

A freshman year at college.

*Quirk, L. W. Freshman Dorn, Pitcher.....H5885

An interesting account of a University of Wisconsin freshman's not-too-easily won success on the diamond, gridiron and cinder track.

Remington, F. Way of an Indian.....B1951

The author makes vivid by word and pencil a picture of Indian customs and ideals.

Cowboy's Life.

Sabin, E. L. On the Plains with Custer.....H6361
The story of Ned Fletcher, a young bugler in Custer's regiment during the famous Indian campaign.

Schultz, J. W. On the Warpath.
Further adventures of the heroes of "The Quest of the Fish-Dog Skin," in which several Indian fights are described in a vivid manner, which makes them seem real but not over colored.

*Schultz, J. W. With the Indians in the Rockies.
Adventures of a lost boy in the old trapping days.

Schultz, J. W. Quest of the Fish-Dog Skin.....H6422
Continues the adventures of the boys in "With the Indians in the Rockies." The boys with one man for guide take the perilous journey to the Pacific to find a fish-dog (seal) skin. They succeed, although Raven, their guide, is killed at the end of their journey and they have to make the return trip alone.

Schurtz. Lincoln.
Perhaps the best sketch of character and achievements of the greatest president.

Seton, E. T. Rolf in the Woods.....H6355
A boy scout and an Indian in the days of 1812.

*Seton, E. T. Wild Animals I Have Known.....K8207
Romantic stories about animals.
Read also: "Biography of a Grizzly" and * "Lives of the Hunted."

Shedd, G. C. The Incorrigible Dukane.
Young Dukane, an extravagant, irresponsible lad, tries his rich father's patience too far and is shipped off, with $100, to inspect a dam his father's firm is building somewhere in the west. Robbed of money and clothed in rags, he arrives at the construction camp, where his story is not believed and he is set to work as a day laborer. How he discovers the treachery of the superintendent, falls in love with a ranchman's daughter, plots, fights and wins, makes a lively and wholesome story.

Good Stories for Boys—Continued

*Smiles, S. Self-Help.....E1512
A classic of its kind.

*Spearman, F. H. Mountain Divide.
Spirited tale for boys, in which a 17-year-old telegraph operator has all manner of adventures at "the end of the track," while serving a party of surveyors engaged in laying out the Union Pacific Railroad.

Spearman, F. H. Strategy of the Great Railroads.

*Stevenson, E. B. Young Section Hand.....H6630 v. 1

*—Young Train Despatcher.

*—Young Train Master.

Good railroad stories.

Stevenson. Black Arrow.

Mistress Joanna Sedley, disguised as a boy, is protected by Harry Shetton, Yorkist, during the troubrous days of the War of Roses, and he later wins her hand in marriage. The Black Arrow was the sign of a band of outlaws under John-Amend-All, who sought vengeance on certain nobles.

Stevenson. Kidnapped .....F6861
A splendid story of Scotland in 1751.

Stevenson. David Balfour.....F6866
Continues the adventures of the hero of kidnapped.

Stevenson. Master of Ballantrae.....F6674

Wallace, Dillon. Lure of the Labrador Wild.

The account, simply and naturally told, of two young men who are impelled by a fascination to explore the interior of Labrador. Their sufferings from cold and lack of foods and the tragic death of the leader make a pathetic ending to an heroic effort.

*Wallace, Dillon. Wilderness Castaways.

Washington. Tuskegee and Its People.

Work and aims of a model educational institution for negroes.

*Wason, R. A. Happy Hawkins.....F19016

*—Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle.

The second in this interesting series of Texas life. Has the same humor and appreciation of human nature that characterized Happy Hawkins.

*Wason, R. A. Friar Tuck.

Happy Hawkins tells the story of a preacher who traveled through the western cattle country and whom his cowboy admirers nicknamed "Friar Tuck." The story contains plenty of excitement, some fun and much human nature.

*White, S. E. The Blazed Trail.....F19343

—Gold.

—The Forest.

White, S. E. Adventures of Bobby Orde.....H2677

A loosely knit story of a real boy. His joys, troubles, love affairs, his friendships and adventures, through which he passes before he achieves his ambition to become the owner of a real rifle, are told with a delicate appreciation that suggests the author has drawn Bobby from memory, not observation.

*White, S. E. The Riverman.....F9637

A stirring narrative of the lumbering industry in Michigan in the early seventies, full of danger and fascination.

Williams. Romance of Modern Locomotive Railroads in All Parts of the World.....K5732

A Christmas Sermon

To be honest, to be kind, to earn a little and to spend a little less, to make upon the whole a family happier for his presence, to renounce when that shall be necessary and not be embittered, to keep a few friends but those without capitulation—above all, on the same grim condition, to keep friends with himself—here is a task for all that a man has of fortitude and delicacy. He has an ambitious soul, who would ask more; he has a hopeful spirit, who should look in such an enterprise to be successful.

There is indeed one element in human destiny that not blindness itself can controvert; whatever else we are intended to do, we are not intended to succeed; failure is the fate allotted. It is so in every art and study; it is so above all in the continent art of living well. Here is a pleasant thought for the year's end or for the end of life: Only self-deception will be satisfied, and there need be no despair for the desirer.

Robert Louis Stevenson.

Introduction

THE Sears, Roebuck and Co. Library, maintained by Sears, Roebuck and Co. for the use and pleasure of its employes, is favorably located on the first floor of the Merchandise Building at the left of the tower entrance. The library opens at 7:30 in the morning and remains open after 5:30 for those who wish to stop for a book on the way home. The shelves contain books of every kind; novels, books on business efficiency, character development, athletics and science. If the book that is needed is not on our shelves, we can send down to the Chicago Public Library and have it sent out, on the daily delivery which is made by the Main Library at 11:30 A. M.

The magazine collection now contains fifty-two magazines, all of which we circulate. Duplicate reference copies of the popular magazines are kept in the magazine case, so that those who care to read at noon may find the magazine they want.

The reference collection, now numbering about 100 volumes, does not circulate, and gazeteers, year books and almanacs may be used for reference at any time.

Use of the Library

Every employe of Sears, Roebuck and Co. is entitled to four cards, a card to the House Collection, a fiction and non-fiction card from the Chicago Public Library, on which the Deposit or down-town books may be taken, and a magazine card on which current magazines are circulated. These cards allow the reader to have three books and a magazine at the same time.

How to Obtain a Card. Come to the library and sign an application blank, or, if you work in another building, send in a request for the application blanks and the librarian will send them.

How to Obtain the Books. After you have your cards, you can select your own books from our shelves or send for books from the Main Library.

Arrangement of Books on Our Shelves. We now have nine cases of books in the Sears, Roebuck and Co. Collection, shelved on the south wall.

Reference Work. If you can not find what you want, the librarian will be glad to give you any assistance possible in getting information, making study lists for reading, or in suggesting good books.

WHERE SHALL WE GO?

There are, doubtless, a number of employes in the house who are hunting for a pleasant place in which to spend a vacation. For their information we have placed on file in the library some bulletins that contain names, description and prices of desirable summer resorts, cottages for rent, and suggestions for summer travel. These will be found especially useful in planning short vacation trips.

Vacation Privileges

This summer, as has been the custom in past years, the Library is issuing Vacation and Summer cards for the convenience of its patrons. The Vacation card may be obtained by application at the library desk. On this card one may have ten books, five fiction and five non-fiction, for a period not exceeding two months. The summer card gives the reader the privilege of taking five books for a period not exceeding one month. The five books may be exchanged any time within the month and other books may be selected. For people who care to read on their vacations, or to read at home during the summer, these cards offer a great opportunity to get as many books as they may desire.

O. HENRY

*O. Henry, Afrite-Chef of all delight—
Of all delectables conglomerate
That stay the starved brain and rejuvenate
The Mental Man! The aesthetic appetite—
So long enhungered that the “inards” fight
And growl gutwise—its pangs thou dost abate
And all so amiably alleviate,
Joy pats his belly as a hobo might
Who haply hath obtained a cherry pie
With no burnt crust at all, ner any seeds;
Nothin’ but crisp crust, and the thickness fit.
And squashin’-juicy, an’ jes’ mighty nigh
Too dratted, drippin’-sweet for human needs,
But fer the sosh of milk that goes with it.*

—Written in the character of “Sherrard Plummer” by James Whitcomb Riley.

William Sydney Porter, alias O. Henry

The spirit of romance and adventure in modern fiction of today lives in the short stories of William Sidney Porter. To see wonder tales in the lives of the derelicts sleeping on the benches of Madison square, in the lives of the humble dwellers in Harlem flats, educated girls behind the glove counters in the big department stores was his great power of insight and sympathy with his fellow creatures. The following quotation from “The Green Door,” one of his own short stories, states his belief in the mystery of every day life.

“Suppose you should be walking down Broadway after dinner, with ten minutes allotted to the consummation of your cigar while you are choosing between a diverting tragedy and something serious in the way of vaudeville. Suddenly a hand is laid upon your arm. You turn to look into the thrilling eyes of a beautiful woman, wonderful in diamonds and Russian sables. She thrusts hurriedly into your hand an extremely hot buttered roll, flashes out a tiny pair of scissors, snips off the second button of your overcoat, meaningly ejaculates the one word, 'parallelogram' and swiftly flies down a cross street, looking back fearfully over her shoulder.

"That would be pure adventure. Would you accept it? Not you. You would flush with embarrassment; you would sheepishly drop the roll and continue down Broadway, fumbling feebly for the missing button. This you would do unless you are one of the blessed few in whom the pure spirit of adventure is not dead."

"True adventures have never been plentiful. They who are set down in print as such have been mostly business men with newly invented methods. They have been out after the things they wanted—golden fleeces, holy grails, lady loves, treasure, crowns and fame. The true adventurer goes forth aimless and uncalculating to meet and greet unknown fate. A fine example was the Prodigal Son—when he started back home.

"Half adventures—brave and splendid figures—have been numerous. From the Crusades to the Palisades they have enriched the arts of history and fiction and the trade of historical fiction. But each of them had a prize to win, a goal to kick, an axe to grind, a race to run, a new thrust in fierce to deliver, a name to carve, a crow to pick—so that they were not followers of true adventure.

"In the big city the twin spirits Romance and Adventure are always abroad seeking worthy wooers. As we roam the streets they slyly peep at us and challenge us in twenty different guises. Without knowing why we look up suddenly to see in a window a face that seems to belong to our gallery of intimate portraits; in a sleeping thoroughfare we hear a cry of agony and fear coming from an empty and shuttered house; instead of at our familiar curb a cab-driver deposits us before a strange door, which one, with a smile, opens for us and bids us enter; a slip of paper, written upon, flutters down to our feet from the high lattices of Chance; we exchange glances of instantaneous hate, affection and fear with hurrying strangers in the passing crowds; a sudden souse of rain—and our umbrella may be sheltering the daughter of the Full Moon and first cousin of the Sidereal System; at every corner handkerchiefs drop, fingers beckon, eyes besiege, and the lost, the lonely, the rapturous, the mysterious, the perilous, changing clues of adventure are slipped into our fingers. But few of us are willing to hold and follow them. We are grown stiff with the ramrod of convention down our backs. We pass on; and some day we come, at the end of a very dull life, to reflect that our romance has been a pallid thing of a marriage or two, a satin rosette kept in a safe-deposit drawer, and a lifelong feud with a steam radiator."

"In a flash here and a flash there he sees and shows what a succession of days and recurring nights brings to the shop girl, the clerk, the worker at this and that dull task, for a wage that supplies little to the body and less to the soul. Life is made up of sobs, sniffles and smiles, with the sniffles predominating."

He has been called "a Yankee Maupassant," for certainly no one now writing and for that matter no one in the past has found so much human interest and appeal in the lives of humdrum people. The great part of his art is that he can make you feel the romance of present day life, too. Throughout the country are scattered people of all sorts and conditions who agree enthusiastically on one point—that no one else can write short stories like O. Henry. He has no equal for keen insight into the beauties and meannesses of character and motive.

That he has won a place in the hearts of Americans was shown when, after his death, a national memorial was unveiled at Raleigh, North Carolina. The memorial, the funds for which were contributed by admirers of the writings of O. Henry from many parts of the United States, took the form of a bronze tablet with a medallion executed by Lorado Taft.

For a man whose work commanded the highest prices, and editors pay for breadth and depth of appeal, he maintained an almost impregnable wall of silence about his personal life. He had passed through all the down-at-the-heels occupations about which he later wrote with such humor and kindly understanding. He was at different times a tramp, book agent, drug clerk, cowboy and hack newspaper writer. He was born in Greensboro, North Carolina, in 1867, and later lived in Texas on a ranch. From the experiences gained in his Texas life he wrote many of the stories in "Heart of the West." Later he attempted to run a newspaper in Austin, Texas. The tale of that paper, called The Rolling Stone, is told in a book called by the same title, the contents of which were compiled after his death. At the failure of his literary effort, Porter went to South America to grow fruit. He stuck it out for about two years and the only fruit of that trip was the book "Cabbages and Kings" which appeared some years later. His real genius burns brightest in his stories of New York, "The Four Million," "Voice of the City" and "The Trimmed Lamp."

In speaking of his stories he says, "Just change 23rd St. in one of my New York stories to Main Street, rub out the Flatiron Building and put in the Town Hall. Then the story will fit just as truly elsewhere. At least, I hope this is the case with what I write. So long as your story is true to life, the mere change of local color will set it East, West, North or South. The characters in the Arabian Nights parade up and down Broadway at midnight, or Main Street in Dallas, Texas.

If you have never enjoyed O. Henry, you should begin at once, for his stories make excellent light reading for summer. He writes with the skill of a Maupassant and with a humor of which Maupassant never dreamed. His style is an original revelation of life.

List of O. Henry's Books

Porter, William Sidney.

Cabbages and Kings..... F5832

Scene of this story that its author labels vaudeville, is one of the small republics on the Central American coast. It begins with the overthrow of the government and the escape of the president with a young American opera singer and a valise containing $100,000.00 of government funds. The story continues until we see his tyrannical successor ousted. Meanwhile many figures, mostly amusing, glide across the scenes, which appear somewhat detached until in the last chapter all the threads are gathered up.

The Four Million..... F13681

The "Four Hundred" of New York are proven in these stories to be only a small part of the vast four million souls who make up New York City. The stories have a touch of the magic that lies all about us in a great city. The romance and joys and sorrows of our neighbors and fellow workers are shown in the typical stories of this book.

The Gentle Grafters..... F16562

Stories in which Mr. Jeff Peters and Mr. Andy Tucker figure as the heroes. They are the gentle grafters who know how to get money without physical effort. They try anything from matrimonial bureaus to a corner on saloons. The stories have a distinctly western flavor.

Heart of the West..... F16559

Nineteen stories of cattle men, hoboes, cow girls and the west. The first story, "Hearts and Crosses," is a tale that makes the eyes water with the friendly interest aroused in the affairs of the cattle queen and her husband. "The Pimento Pancakes" is a roaring farce with the cowboy in the lead. The other stories are equally good.

Options ..... F16563

Another collection of good short stories, some about New York. The story "Thimble, Thimble" reminds one of Stockton's "Lady and the Tiger" in the tantalizing question it leaves in the mind of the reader. "The Third Ingredient" is a humorous tale of a beef stew made in a poor boarding house by three people each contributing one ingredient.

Roads of Destiny..... F16560

The title story of this book is a very unusual story of a young poet who leaves home because his sweetheart has quarreled with him. He comes to a place where the road branches. The adventures that will befall him if he takes the left branch are told; then the tale takes up his experiences if he takes the right branch and the last is what befalls him when he decides to go back home and make peace with his Yvonne.

Rolling Stones ..... F16566

This, the twelfth and final volume of O. Henry's work, gets its title from an early newspaper venture of which he was head and front. The contents of "Rolling Stones" are drawn from old letters, newspaper clippings and some unfinished stories of his.

Sixes and Sevens.....F16565

The most appealing story in this collection is the one of "Jimmy Hayes and Muriel." Jimmy was a new member of the Texas Rangers and his pet was a horned toad "Muriel." After the first border skirmish, Jimmy disappeared. One year later the skeleton of four of the outlaws were found and nearby a single skeleton of a Texas Ranger. There was no way to identify him until "Muriel" hopped out from beneath the bones of her beloved master.

Strictly Business .....F16564

New York again with all its glamour and heart-breaks, its reckless gaiety and petty strife, is the center of these stories. The title story, "Strictly Business," is the stage story of two vaudeville artists and their "strictly business" agreement.

The Trimmed Lamp.....F16567

Short stories, picturing the seamy side of New York life, betraying an intimate acquaintance with Bohemia and the slums and written in a spontaneous racy style. The title story, "The Trimmed Lamp," gives a lifelike story of two girls who are chums, one of whom works in a department store and the other in a laundry.

The Voice of the City.....F13682

A continuation of "The Four Million." "While the Auto Waits" is the story of a lovely cashier in a restaurant who reads Stevenson's New Arabian Nights. "The Defeat of the City" is a clever sketch of the return of a successful city man to his country home.

Whirligigs .....F13683

A typical O. Henry story in this collection is "Girl." In it you are led to believe that the hero, a young broker, recently married, is a heartless home breaker. The last sentence unravels the whole mystery. The title story, "Whirligig of Life," is a clever western story written in a sympathetic manner.

"UNDER THE GREENWOOD TREE"

*Under the greenwood tree,
Who loves to lie with me,
And tune his merry note
Unto the sweet bird's throat,
Come hither, come hither, come hither:
Here shall he see
No enemy
But winter and rough weather.*

*Who doth ambition shun,
And loves to live i' the sun,
Seeking the food he eats,
And pleased with what he gets,
Come hither, come hither, come hither:
Here shall he see
No enemy
But winter and rough weather.*

Shakespearean Masques and Pageants

"He was not of an age, but for all time."—Ben Johnson

In celebrating the Shakespeare Tercentenary this year, a nation wide interest has been aroused and is already bearing rich fruits: Every educational force in the country has contributed something. The public schools are giving masques and pageants, the Universities have given and are planning great celebrations, the Libraries have compiled lists on Shakespearean material, and best of all a great community interest which has long lain dormant has awakened and taken hold of this movement. The greatest artists of our country as well as the humblest school child have contributed their share. In creating interest and giving helpful incentive and inspiration the Drama League of America takes the front place.

The pageants and masques will assume various forms—outdoor and indoor. Naturally the larger type of outdoor celebration, permitting of very large audiences, finds greatest favor; but the problem of what should be presented in order to reach audiences of ten thousand and over is perplexing. The general rule is to incorporate for celebration purposes, opportunities and resources already instituted with the Shakespeare Masques.

"In following out that idea, various committees were appointed—to select sites; to select and arrange appropriate scenes; and finally to invite the participation in each of these scenes of different organizations or individuals. The plan finally developed seems so simple and easily adapted to the needs of other cities that it is here described in detail for that purpose."

In Chicago there was a festival by the public school children in six of the large parks. A repetition of the Shakespeare pageant, given in Lincoln Park, April 23, 1912, was planned for the public schools of Chicago with the following changes: Each side of Chicago had its own pageant; the South Side used Jackson and Washington Parks; the North Side, Lincoln, and the West Side, Humboldt, Garfield and Douglas Parks. The main features of the pageant were the assembling and formation, the line of march, the court presentation, and finale. In Lincoln Park the pageant was unchanged. In Jackson Park the formation took place at the south end, the line of march took one past the German Building for the court presentation, and the finale was before the main entrance to the Art Building, while the Wooded Island was used for some of the fairy features. In Humboldt the lagoon and the Formal Garden was used effectively, and the finale was in the Music Pavilions. The size of Washington, Douglas and Garfield Parks made necessary a very much reduced plan and they used only a few of the plays. However, an attractive line of march and place for a finale of Old English dances and Shakespearean songs was possible in each park. In this way the children celebrated in their respective neighborhoods, avoiding the long trip across the city, and parents visited the nearby parks to see their children in the Pageant. Thus in each case an effort was made to use to advantage the loveliest features of each park, combined with the main points of the pageant, offers in beauty of background or opportunity for special development, as: The use of the Wooded Island for special features from "Midsummer Night's Dream," the Shakespeare statue at Lincoln Park for the ceremony of quotations, or the lagoon in Humboldt Park for a Fairy Barge for Titania and train. As the school children had no lines to learn from the plays, no rehearsals were necessary. As in 1912, the work was done in entire co-ordination with the regular school work, the music, the manual training, English, History, Nature Study, and other studies bearing upon the Shakespeare celebrations.

As to the music and dances, there is a wealth of old-time songs, dances, and marches that were used. The employment of mandolin and guitar with a few added instruments give a good deal of the old flavor to the music and the dances used are those collected by Mr. Cecil Sharpe of the English Folk Dance Society. Several of these dances were danced at our Field Meet in 1915 by 80 of the girls of Sears, Roebuck and Co.

Merely as a matter of educational policy, there is urgent need of the influence which should emanate from these festivals. They are needed to give new tone and quality to the literary, musical, dramatic and recreative interests of young people—and, indeed, of the public generally.

The most interesting phase of the movement is the community spirit and interest that a great effort for a beautiful production such as the New York masque, Caliban, by Percy MacKayes, brings about. When one thousand amateurs act or dance in one festival, each one of the thousand interests in the performance at least four other persons. It means a revival of civic interest that will accomplish great things for our cities.

An interesting list of cities that are giving masques and pageants has been compiled by the Shakespeare Tercentenary Bureau, Drama League of America. The most significant ones are listed below.

Atlanta, Ga., had a huge pageant.

Austin, Texas, celebrated with a big pageant.

Baltimore, Md. A festival celebration was arranged by a Committee composed of the President of the Drama League, the Mayor and a civic committee representing prominent organizations; along with various subordinate celebrations including a dramatic recital in a beautiful Shakespeare garden, Shakespearean musical concert and masque.

Birmingham, Alabama. The Shakespeare Tercentenary Committee of the Birmingham Drama League planned a week of Shakespeare.

Buffalo, N. Y., had a large civic celebration of festival type.

Boston, Mass., had a civic outdoor festival celebration early in June, including scenes from a number of Shakespeare's plays, several played by John Craig and his Company of the Castle Square Theatre, and ended with a memorial masque played in the parks with several thousand participants.

Butte, Montana. A theatrical performance in the City Auditorium. Chairman, Mrs. Jas. Lloyd Denison.

Chicago, Ill. Week of June 12. Shakespeare festival given by the Drama League at Lincoln Park in 1912 was repeated in six parks. Fourteen Dramatic organizations presented Shakespearean scenes or plays, interchanging with each other. Special exhibits in the libraries, along with the celebration of Shakespeare Day in clubs and pulpits. The Chicago Symphony orchestra had a special musical program and the North Shore Musical Festival Association had two Shakespeare programs. The new pier was opened by a Shakespeare costume ball.

Cincinnati, Ohio. A municipal masque pageant, "The Land of Phantasie," by Alice Williams Brotherton. Director, Mr. Rettig.

Dayton, Ohio. A week of Shakespeare, culminating in performances of the MacKaye Masque.

Detroit, Mich. Important demonstration in Detroit, a large festival and the MacKaye Masque, "Caliban."

Honolulu, Hawaii. Shakespeare festival. Chairman, Mrs. Day.

Iowa City, Iowa. May 12. Shakespeare pageant. Director, Glenn N. Merry.

Indianapolis, Indiana, had a large celebration.

Louisville, Kentucky. May 12. Shakespeare pageant. A festival of nine Shakespearean dramas in Central Park. Woman's Club, Louisville Centre of the Drama League and all schools and organizations of the city took part. Director, Anna McGill.

Minneapolis, Minn., had a large city pageant. Chairman, Miss Elizabeth R. Ware.

New York, N. Y. Week of May 23. New York City had a splendid civic celebration. All local celebrations came to a focus in the large municipal festival in which the whole city took part. This was the first performance of Percy MacKaye's Masque, "Caliban," at the City College Stadium.

North Carolina. March 24 to May 25. The North Carolina Shakespeare Tercentenary Association has had a wide observance of this anniversary. Big Community Festivals were held by all towns and colleges. The following states cooperated: North Carolina, South Carolina, Wyoming, Missouri and New Jersey. Celebrations occurred in the North, East, South and West.

Ottawa, Can. The Tercentenary Committee, headed by the Mayor, planned local celebrations.

Pittsburgh, Pa. Central committee, composed of civic groups, united on the MacKaye Masque, "Caliban," for a week.

Richmond, Va. May 4-5. Shakespearean and Elizabethan pageant out of doors on a marvelous natural site combining college and town, water and hills. Three thousand took part. Director, Miss Hatcher.

San Diego, California. April 29. Exposition grounds. "Masque of Shakespeare Children," by Mrs. Virginia Church. Given by the San Diego chapter of the Drama League of America. Director, John Lane Connor. The largest celebration on the coast. Thirty plays passed in pageant form. It was a civic movement including one thousand members of musical organizations, playground members, Federated Society of Women's Clubs, and thirty-three schools. A Shakespeare Garden like that which surrounded the writer's home in Stratford-on-Avon was built at the fair.

San Francisco celebrated with a pageant on an outdoor stage of huge proportions in the Park.

Sedalia, Mo. In May. Shakespeare Festival at the Opera House, repeated later in the park. Chairman, Mrs. C. C. Evans.

St. Louis, Mo. June 4. "As You Like It," the Margaret Anglin production in Forest Park, under auspices of the Pageant Drama Association. A civic production in honor of the Tercentenary. Drama League Convention, April 26-29.

Tacoma, Washington. A Shakespearean pageant was given in Stadium. Chairman, Mrs. C. P. Balabonoff.

Toledo, Ohio. April 24-30. A week's celebration including exhibits of Shakespereana at the Art Museum, a concert of Shakespearean music, performances of the mob scene from "Julius Caesar"; performances, accompanied by the old English dances, of "Master Skylark," played by a group of players going from school to school; memorial services in every church on Sunday, April 30, on topics related to the Tercentenary.

Toronto, Can. Civic Committee planned the celebration. Chairman, Mrs. T. J. Small.

Washington, D. C. An elaborate festival was held here.

Wellesley, Mass. Tercentenary Shakespeare Masque, "Will o' the World," May 13. Director, Mrs. Laura P. Ingalls.

Many of these local celebrations are taking the form of Elizabethan revels or festivals, in which portions of Shakespearean scenes are acted, or in which the characters of Shakespeare appear in incidents more or less related to or adapted from the original plays. In Boston the "Shakespeare Festival Guild," which has been organized to carry on the public celebration, finally decided upon a modification of the old processional pageant idea as being best adapted to meet existing local conditions.

*Oh! to be out in the open,
To be wandering clear and wide;
To know the wild joy of the river
And feel the cool pulse of the wind.*

*It is worth the long week's working
To know that after the rush
We may kiss the sky of the country
And drink in the joy of its dusk.*

Afield Afoot

Each Saturday noon, the outgoing trains to the country are filled with those of us who love to get back to the land. No longer does the city man and woman wait for his vacation to get out of the town; he uses each week-end to advantage and goes on hikes by himself or with some kindred spirit. The week-end idea has become so popular that one may enjoy thirty-six hours of country air, sky and food for two or three dollars.

The sand dunes of Indiana just beyond Gary are within easy reach of any of us. The trees, flowers and animal life are very interesting. There are many varieties of flowers in bloom all spring and summer and the small pools back in the dunes afford a splendid rich soil for beautiful flowers. Orchids grow there in season; in spring the big pansy violets make the ground so blue that at a distance one could believe that tiny bits of the sky had fallen. The lupin and columbine come in May and grow in the sandy soil. The phlox blossoms in May and June, scenting the air with its delicate perfume. But best of all, the cool Lake Michigan lies on the other side of the dunes, and there one can bathe or rest at ease upon the clean white sand.

The valley of the Des Plaines river just west of us affords another good hiking ground for Chicagoans. The flowers are abundant and the trees particularly fine. The elevated railway carries one out far into the country.

The North Shore of Lake Michigan with its high picturesque bluffs and beautiful shore line is a favorite haunt of lovers of the woods and lake. One need only consult the bulletins of the Prairie Club, a club of people interested in nature and all out doors, for good trips to take, or the Eleanor Club bulletins of weekly hikes to realize the unlimited opportunities the environs of Chicago hold for delightful trips.

The library will have a bulletin of the hikes of the various clubs on its bulletin board. The "Helps to Vacations" directory is on the table and already has solved the vacation problem for many employees.

To really enjoy outdoors, one must know something about the things he sees. Birds fly by with their wild notes, trees are throwing a delightful shade and one feels an added sense of relationship to his surroundings if he can say, "That was a meadow lark, I know his coloring and song." Many enthusiastic people carry a small guide book to birds with them on their walks and learn to know many birds before the season is closed. Trees are as interesting in their individuality and flowers are a fascinating subject for vacation study. With flowers comes the inevitable bee and other insects. All these small creatures have a life story as unique and full of unusual details as the flowers themselves. Jean Stratton Porter has written a splendid book on "Moths of the Limberlost" which one may consult in the Thomas Hughes Room in the Chicago Public Library. Henri Fabre, the noted Frenchman, has written many books on his beloved bees, wasps and spiders.

The following list is for those of us who love nature and wish to become more intelligent and observing in regard to her wonders.

BIRDS IN SUMMER

*How pleasant the life of a bird must be,
Flitting about in each leafy tree;
In the leafy trees so broad and tall,
Like a green and beautiful palace hall,
With its airy chambers, light and boon,
That open to sun, and stars, and moon;
That open unto the bright blue sky,
And the frolicsome winds as they wander by!*

Library Book Notices

The Sears, Roebuck and Co. Library sends a notice to the book borrower for every book, whether it be a Sears book or a Chicago Public Library Deposit book, that is charged at the Library desk, the day it is due. No notices are sent by our library for books drawn from the Main Library down town. Therefore the borrower is liable for a three-cent fine for each day over his allotted two weeks. Many people have become so accustomed to our due notices that they have forgotten that the Chicago Public Library does not send notices to jog the memory of book borrowers until the book is one week overdue.

Special Notice to Borrowers

It is a wise precaution to look at the condition of a book before you take it from the library, for if it is returned in a damaged condition you are liable for the repairs. Many times when the crowd at the desk is large, the library assistants do not have time to examine each book as it is returned and sometimes a damaged book is allowed to go out without being marked damaged.

FICTION

Allen, J. J. A Cathedral Singer.....A153c

"This story of New York centers about the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. A mother and son who live in its shadow are the characters. The boy has a beautiful voice and it is the dream of the two that he may some day sing in the cathedral choir. The mother will make any sacrifice to make it come true, but the dream is snatched from her, leaving her bereft. The story appeared in the Century for May, 1914."

Bates, S. C. The Geranium Lady.....B319

"Simple, rather pretty little story of an unaffected girl, with a great garden of geraniums on the Maine coast, and a young naval officer who is in a nearby village recovering from the effects of an explosion. Good local color."

Beach, Rex. Crimson Gardenia .....B352c

"A group of short stories collected from various magazines. The first is the story of the adventures of a blasé young man, who believed that romance was dead, during Mardi Gras week in New Orleans. Others that follow are stories of Central America and of the far north. Contents: The Crimson Gardenia; Rope's End; Inocencio; The Wag-lady; "Man Proposes—"; Told in the Storm; The Weight of Obligation; The Stampede; When the Mail Came in; McGill; The Brand."

Bell, Lillian. About Miss Mattie Morning Glory..B413

The romance of a warm-hearted little milliner of middle age who helps several people to realize their dreams and in so doing her own hopes materialize.

Bingham, E. A. Heart of Thunder Mountain....B513

"The heroine, an Eastern girl, and the hero, a masterful rancher embittered towards women, belong to hostile factions in a western cattle war. The first unfriendly meeting leads to a one sided, but successful love affair, in which the girl courts the man, rescues him and nurses him back to life after an accident caused by a wonderful, untamable horse, which plays an important role in the story."

Bosher, K. L. People Like That.....B652p

A young society woman, a college graduate, tires of her useless life and goes to live in the old home of her family which is now in the heart of the slums. She learns from her contact with the people of the slums that society people have a definite obligation to the less fortunate. Her love affair with a conservative young lawyer of fine family is at last settled, although many complications in the form of his younger brother block the way.

Brady, C. T. Baby of the Frontier.....B729

"One of Cyrus Townsend Brady's thrilling stories of adventure. The western prairies of pioneer days are the scene, and a stirring fight between a small party of United States troops and a large band of Cheyenne Indians forms the principal incident. This occurs at the outset while the troops are escorting an officer's wife across the plains to an army post.

. . . When attack is imminent, a trooper is dispatched on a wild ride to a fort for help. Then ensues a marvelous defense against tremendous odds, and, to complicate matters, a child is born to the officer's wife while the fight is under way. . . . The child born amid these circumstances is later kidnapped by the Indians, and ultimately becomes the focusing object of the narrative."

Burnham, C. L. Instead of the Thorn.....B966in

After her graduation from college, Mabel resolves to devote her time in making life less irksome to her tired, overworked father. Not until she is suddenly left parentless does the fruitlessness of her days spent in self gratification become revealed to her. The uprooting of the seeds sown proves a long and trying experience, but the quiet influence of her surroundings, and the encouraging presence of friends, helps to so transform her nature, that to the man whom she had wrongly believed to be the cause of her father's death, she succeeds in becoming his dearest friend.

Cleghorn, S. N. The Spinster.....C587

"A series of sketches more than a novel. In them are revealed the forces, external and internal, which help to mold and develop this unusual child who, after her mother died, came with her brother to live in a little Vermont village with her aunts. Her school life, her year's work at Radcliffe, where she began to express herself in poetry, her brief love affair, are quietly and sincerely depicted, and we leave her, aged twenty-seven, interested in the socialistic movement, intent on assuming her wider responsibilities."

Cobb, Irvin S. Old Judge Priest.....C633

"A series of unconnected sketches of Judge Priest and his people, forming an appealing character study of the old Kentucky country judge who appeared in 'Back Home.' He is a likable figure, old-fashioned, careless of his speech and ways, but kindly and tolerant, friend of all ne'er-do-wells, a staunch southern soldier and a gentleman."

Cooper, Mrs. E. B. Drusilla With a Million.....C784

"Drusilla was the household drudge in the old woman's home until a distant relative left her a million and a wonderful house. Soon she had a dozen infants under her care, worked up a romance, gave some of the idle rich a few ideas about real helpfulness and made a place for herself as leader of the summer colony. Drusilla is a lovable old woman and the story will appeal to sentimental readers."

Cullum, R. Golden Woman.....C898g

Strength dominates every page of this story. You will like "The Golden Woman" as much for its humanness and realism as for its thrills, as it unfolds the experiences of Joan Stanmore, who flees to the hills of Montana to escape a curse which followed her with tragic persistence.

Daviess, M. T. The Daredevil.....D288d

The masquerade of the Marquise Roberta from France, in the costume of her brother during her sojourn with her fiery old Uncle Robert in America, makes a good story to while away an hour. How Roberta disentangled the many complications she had piled up for herself is worth reading.

Delano, E. B. When Carey Came to Town.....D373w

This little love story of Belinda Carey Withersbee, an incredible southern girl who has grown up on a deserted southern plantation with no experience of life and no conception of modern conventions, and Hiram A. Ward, a wealthy young mill owner, is a story of the kind that we wish might happen. The innocent charm of Carey brings her friends and admiration from every one who meets her, but the disillusionment is terrible when she discovers that there is misery and suffering in the world and particularly among Ward's mill workers.

Forman, Justus Miles. The Twin Sisters.....F766t

A modern romance of international society. This, the last of Mr. Forman's brilliant novels, was finished shortly before he went down on the Lusitania. In this as in his other books, Mr. Forman wrote of a life and people he knew, well bred gentlefolk, not the caricatures so often met with in so-called "society novels."

Gilman, D. F. Bloom of Youth.....G42

"The ideas and growing ideals of a Boston girl who refuses to be a conventional debutante and enters Radcliffe College to become absorbed in her life there. The various college types, radical and conservative, are well drawn, as well as several Boston women who reveal the technique of the art of making successful debutantes. Though intensely interested by the most radical of her new friends Leslie's common sense and intellectual honesty find the flaws in their arguments; and the devoted Herbert, who has watched her development with anxiety, is rewarded as he should be."

Grimshaw, Beatrice E. My Lady of the Island....G884

"A tale of the South Sea islands. The hero, young Paul Corbet, son of a Liverpool manufacturer, wearsies of his monotonous life and longs for the adventures for which his temperament and abilities fit him. He goes on board the Empress of Singapore, just for the love of a ship and the thought of the far lands to which she is sailing. He ingeniously contrives to stay on board, wins the confidence of Vincent Gore, a famous English explorer and ethnologist, and is attached to him as secretary. Several German colonial officials enter into the story, as does a young girl who has just been married against her will to a German officer. The action takes place in 1914 and the three, Vincent Gore, Paul, and the girl Isola return from a remarkable two months of adventure in the interior to find that German New Guinea is no longer German and that the fortunes of war have set Isola free."

Jepson, Edgar. Alice Devine.....J469a

"A humorous romance, recording the experiences encountered by an English peer when he assumes possession of a group of houses known as Garthoyle Gardens, left to him by his uncle on condition that he manage the property himself."

Kelland, C. B. The Hidden Spring.....K28

"Donald Keith finds himself in a little town which has been tyrannized over for years by a hard, unscrupulous lumber king. The lumberman rouses the young man's latent ability and force by kicking his dog. Then begins a struggle which involves the whole town and ends in victory and a romance for the hero."

Kerr, Sophie. Love at Large.....K466

The romance of young married life is the theme of this bright and amusing book. Here are no gloomy, dramatic problems, which most writers seem to feel obliged to treat, once the hero and heroine have left the altar. The only difficulties are those which the young wife in this book looks upon as a game to test her feminine wits and diplomacy.

Locke, Wm. J. Viviette .....L796v

Viviette, a coquettish debutante, has two suitors, brothers, one of whom, Dick, is a slow, steady country bred youth, the other, Austin, a successful city-made man. Viviette plays fast and loose with their affections until a crisis brings her to her senses and to a realization of her love for Dick.

Lutz, G. L. H. Finding of Jasper Holt.....L978f

A love story of a Western man and an Eastern woman. To rise to the occasion he needs the agencies of an exciting railroad accident, a horse race and loads of beautiful roses from his own garden; but he succeeds and the reader rejoices.

McCutcheon, Geo. B. Light That Lies.....M1391

"There are those to whom the idea of women serving as jurors is repugnant; women are sentimental and would be swayed by their emotions. This is a story of twelve good men and true, twelve staunch, hard-headed, unemotional beings, and one lovely girl who sat appealingly by the side of her aged grandparent during the course of the trial. It is more particularly the story of one of the twelve, young Mr. Sampson, who had hitherto cleverly managed to avoid jury duty. But this time, when the eyes of Miss Alexandra Hildebrand had once caught his, he was lost, and he found himself in consequence serving as No. 3 in the jury box. The story is carried up to the moment of verdict and to an amusing and unexpected climax that came after."

Masefield, John. Captain Margaret.....M378

A story of adventure on the sea told by the poet lover of the seas. The hero, Captain Margaret, sets out to found a just government for the Indians of Panama.

Miller, A. D. Come Out of the Kitchen.....M612c

"An entertaining tale of how a most eligible young man rented a beautiful southern home for the hunting season, stipulating that he must have four servants who belonged to it. The service was unique, and the absurd situations are amusing even though the reader has solved the mystery before the host."

Moore, Leslie. Wiser Folly.....M784w

"An old English castle is the center about which this story moves. It is the home of the Delanceys, and at the time of the story the head of the family is Lady Mary, a fine old gentlewoman who is holding the estate for her small grandson. But a claimant for the place appears, an American who has lived long in Africa, and whose claim to descent from an older branch of the family seems well founded. The plot of the story is concerned with the influences that lead him to give up his rights. Lady Mary's granddaughter, Rosamund, and two young men, one of them engaged in restoring the mural decorations of the village church, also have a part in the story."

Morris, E. B. Our Miss York.....M831

"The problem which the modern business woman must face, in choosing between her profession and marriage, is the subject of a cleverly told story. When Margaret York realized that she must earn her living, she had decided to make a success of it.

. . . Then came David Bruce, whose character was the very opposite of her own. Success repelled him; once let him become proficient in any line, and his interest flagged immediately. Engineering, painting and aviation had each run their way, when Margaret York appeared on the horizon. Then the necessity arose either to equal and exceed her salary, or to become a part of her household impedimenta. For her, too, there was the question of giving up her profession with all that it meant to her, or renouncing all opportunity for a home of her own."

McHarg, Wm. Blind Man's Eyes.....M182b

"About half the action of this story takes place on a transcontinental train between Seattle and Chicago. Shortly before, the country had been startled by the murder of Gabriel Warden, a Pacific coast financier. A new sensation is provided by the attempted murder, on board the train, of Basil Santoine, a blind lawyer of national repute. Santoine is accompanied by his daughter and his secretary, who serve as his 'eyes.' All his professional correspondence must be known to one of them. The train is snowbound in the Rockies and there is no chance for the criminal to escape. Suspicion falls on a young man who gives the name of Philip Eaton. But Santoine refuses to turn him over to the police. He takes Eaton to his own home on the shore of Lake Michigan and keeps him there under close surveillance, and it is there that the remainder of the story is worked out."

Martin, H. R. Her Husband's Purse.....M364h

"One of Mrs. Martin's characteristic stories of the Pennsylvania Dutch. Margaret Berkeley, a gently-bred southern girl, marries Daniel Leitzel of New Munich, Pa. He is a distinguished lawyer and a rich man, but his ideas of the position of women are those of the middle ages. There has been nothing in Margaret's experience to prepare her for his home, his sisters, and for New Munich, generally, but she makes the best of it. She is a woman of spirit and is not at all cowed by her husband's domineering methods. When later circumstances conspire to give her an independent income, her position in her husband's family is altered. The whole story is a plea for the economic independence of women."

MacKenzie, C. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce.....M189

"Janet and Butler Pierce are happily married young people who are quite content with a modest salary and an attractive little suburban home until the success of a friend of Butler's gives Janet the idea that her husband should begin to advance in the world. Butler hesitates; he realizes that he has not the aggressive powers needed in business, but Janet, with the irresistible driving power possessed by women, pushes him on. All their small capital is invested and Butler does his best to enter the 'big game' but he is not fitted for it. The very qualities of gentleness and boyishness that make him lovable also make him unfit for that kind of success. The enterprise fails, and after days of bitterness and misunderstanding there is a happy return to the common level. The story ran as a serial in McClure's Magazine."

New Books in Sears, Roebuck and Co. Library—Continued

Oppenheim, E. P. Amiable Charlatan.....Op5am

"Mr. Paul Wamsley is quietly engaged with his dinner in a respectable London restaurant when a genial stranger drops into a chair at his side and with apologies appropriates the half-eaten meal to himself. The appearance of a detective a moment later throws some light on the situation but by no means makes it wholly intelligible to Mr. Wamsley. Nevertheless when the young man recognizes in the stranger the father of a most beautiful girl whom he has seen dining at the restaurant on other occasions, he unhesitatingly becomes an accomplice in concealing he knows not what illegal act. Thus begins a series of exciting adventures. Mr. Wamsley doesn't at all approve of Mr. Joseph H. Parker's methods, but for Eve's sake, he is forced to condone them. The book is made up of episodes, and one isn't obliged to wait to the end for the revelation of the identity of Joseph H. Bundercombe, alias Parker."

Paine, R. D. Long Road Home.....P1651

"A story of the coastwise merchant marine, with a conventional plot but told in a vigorous, simple style. The hero is the young handsome first officer, the villain the handsome but cowardly captain, the girl an heiress aboard the boat. Through shipwreck, false accusations and mental unbalance the hero finally obtains poetic justice."

Paterson, Isabel. Shadow Riders.....P278

"A story by a new Canadian writer. Alberta is the scene and its economic interests, its business developments, and its politics give the story its background. The action occupies the last five years, and events of importance in that time, among them the rejection of the reciprocity treaty, are prominent in the narrative. The conflict of opinion between East and West on that question is well brought out. But these things, although they form an integral part of the story, are subordinated to the human interests, which involve two girls, one young man setting out on a business and political career, and two older men. The girls occupy the position of heroine interchangeably and are both of more vital stuff than that from which heroines are usually made."

Porter, E. H. Just David.....P833j

"David's father believed that the first dozen years of a child's life are the making of the man. So he took David to live on the mountain and taught him the beauty of the world unspoiled by worldliness as he taught him to play the violin. When David was ten his father's plans were cut short but David, left without even a name, was well equipped by his courage, his loveliness, and music to find his way into the hearts of the people of the New England village."

Porter, S. Trimmed Lamp.....P835t

Short stories, picturing the seamy side of New York life, betraying an intimate acquaintance with Bohemia and the slums and written in a spontaneous racy style. The title story, "The Trimmed Lamp," gives a lifelike story of two girls, who are chums, one of whom works in a department store and the other in a laundry.

Porter, S. Heart of the West.....P835h

Nineteen stories of cattle men, hoboes, cow girls and the west. The first story, "Hearts and Crosses," is a tale that makes the eyes water with the friendly interest aroused in the affairs of the cattle queen and her husband. The "Pimento Pancakes" is a roaring farce with the cowboy in the lead. The other stories are equally good.

Porter, S. Four Million.....P835f

The "Four Hundred" of New York are proven in these stories to be only a small part of the vast four million souls who make up New York City. The stories have a touch of the magic that lies all about us in a great city. The romance and joys and sorrows of our neighbors and fellow workers are shown in the typical stories of this book.

Porter, S. Voice of the City.....P835v

A continuation of the Four Million. "While the Auto Waits" is the story of a lovely cashier in a restaurant who reads Stevenson's New Arabian Nights. "The Defeat of the City" is a clever sketch of the return of a successful city man to his country home.

Prichard. The Pioneers.....P932

A good western story with the usual atmosphere of the breezy and cordial west.

Prouty, O. H. The Fifth Wheel.....P948f

"A sprightly tale of a modern girl who refuses to make a 'successful' marriage with a very wealthy man because she does not love him and later breaks her engagement to the man she does love because their opinions of conventions differ, finally wins success in business in New York and learns that the things she has given up are all she wants."

Richmond, Grace. Under the Country Sky.....R414u

"A pleasant story of a girl who has left college, and is using her energies in keeping house for her half invalid father in a little country town away from all the advantages, and-so-forth. The advantages find her even in her out-of-the-way home and two satisfactory love affairs are the result. Appeared in Ladies' Home Journal under title of 'Star in the Country Sky.'"

Sawyer, Ruth. Seven Miles to Arden.....Sa96s

"A story that ran as a serial in the Ladies' Home Journal. Patsy O'Connell of the Irish National Players is left stranded in New York when the company disbands. But Patsy has no time to worry about troubles of her own when other people need help. And the thought of a young man in trouble and in need of a friend to trust him is enough to send her off on a journey in search of him. She doesn't know him, and can only trace him by the cut of his clothes. He is to be found, she learns, at Arden, seven miles away, and she sets out thither. But Arden seems an elusive town and difficult to arrive at, and on the way she meets a tinker. It is out of these circumstances that a pretty romance grows."

Sinclair (Bower). Phantom Herd.....Si62p

"Luck Lindsay, manager of a Los Angeles film company, has an idea for a big picture. He wants to produce a picture of the real West that was, in the days of the wide and open ranges. But his employers, sure that the public wants only the make-believe West crude melodrama, refuse to listen to his plans. He falls in with the 'Happy Family' of the Flying U, just as they are hungry for adventure. They give him their loyal support and the story of the making of their great picture is the one the author has to tell in this book."

Sterrett, F. R. Mary Rose of Miffleir.....St45m

Another charming love story by the author of "The Jam Girl." The heroine is even more girlish and appealing than the Jam lady.

Stringer, Arthur. Door of Dread.....St86d

German agents have obtained United States army and navy secrets. Reports and plans are in their hands. It is the duty of the Federal secret service to find the spies and get back the stolen matter. For this purpose two men and a woman, patriotic, and experienced in the doings of the underworld in both Europe and America, are employed. The adventures are stirring with their scene moving from California to New York. The story is mainly told by the woman in what she characterizes as "eight" ward talk."

Tarkington, B. Seventeen .....T175s

How romance invaded the untroubled life of William Sylvanns Baxter, aged 17. A deliciously funny story in the author's most irresistible manner.

Thompson, M. Persuasive Peggy.....T375

This is a story that might set a dangerous example to young married women, for what Peggy can not get by persuasion, she gets some other way and keeps her husband's love in a manner that few women could be clever enough to follow.

Tompkins, J. W. Seed of the Righteous.....T599s

"A statue, erected to the memory of Sereno Gage, stood in a crowded city square. He had been known as the friend of children and contributions of pennies from all over the United States had gone to erect the statue. The family of Sereno Gage were, like him, devoted to high causes—to diet kitchens and mothers' outings and eugenics. And secure in the faith that their causes were worthy and that as the children of Sereno Gage they had rights, they let themselves be supported by rich relatives, by wealthy friends, by philanthropists who had been associated with their father. This is particularly the story of Chloe, the youngest of them, who is led to rebel against the 'Gage way' of living and to strike out for herself. Chloe is the heroine but the outstanding personality is Mrs. Gage, a noble figure in spite of eccentricities."

Van Dresser. Gibby of Clamshell Alley.....V287

" 'Clamshell Alley ain't a alley. It's a road along the river startin' at the cove where the McGregors live, an' runnin' up a mile or more.' Gibby tells all the story himself; he took his name from a boat, obtained a Granny by mutual adoption, struggled bravely against Burly McGregor, the meanest man in the cove, cornered the clam market and found at last that he was the judge's grandson. Gibby is a real boy though the dialect in which the story is written will become tiresome to some readers."

Ward, Mrs. H. A Great Success.....W212g

"Doris Meadows is the practical wife of brilliant, lazy young Arthur Meadows. His lectures on political celebrities tend to make him one of the literary lions of the London season. Lady Dunstable takes him up and promises herself he will succeed under her patronage, to be later dropped at her pleasure. The common sense of Doris, who forms no part of Lady Dunstable's scheme, prevents catastrophe. A fortunate opportunity enables her to prevent the marriage of Lord Dunstable's son and heir to an adventuress and win for herself the affection and regard to which she is entitled. The scene moves from London to a country house in the Scottish highlands. Mrs. Humphrey Ward's usual great personages move through the pages."

Warner, Anne. Susan Clegg and Her Love Affairs ..... W242su

The further adventures of a character well known in fiction are detailed in this book. In them we see Susan Clegg bravely overcoming her intention of marrying Jathrop Lathrop, who has returned from the Klondike as a millionaire, and romantically espousing in his place one Mr. Kettlewell—whose distinctions are a bald head, false teeth and simple-mindedness, but who is a "multi-millionaire" in comparison with Lathrop. Throughout the twelve chapters Susan talks and Mrs. Lathrop listens and knocks."

Warwick, Anne. The Unpretenders.....W268u

"Ten short stories more or less linked together. The characters are a group of charming, everyday sort of people and the incidents of the stories are the little events of everyday life. Anne—just a plain woman; Timothy—only a writer; Gladys Marie—merely a maid; and so on, are the titles."

Watts, M. S. The Rudder.....W349ru

"The story opens with a college commencement at Cambridge (Ohio) and is thereafter more or less concerned with the fortunes of two of the graduates, Amzi Loring, class champion in athletics, and T. Chauncey Devitt, valedictorian. Fortune makes of Amzi, whose father is a millionaire, a professional baseball player, and of T. Chauncey, son of an Irish contractor, a 'peerless' orator of the 'silver-tongued' order. It is called by the author a novel with several heroes, but it is questionable whether either of these two young men has a right to the title. There is, however, a heroine, the girl who marries Amzi. The marriage is doomed to failure from the beginning and Eleanor finds her way out of it and into practical charity work. An incidental character whose personality wins for him a high place in the reader's regard is Marshall Cook, Eleanor's uncle, a successful novelist, whose occasional visits to his home city coincide with events narrated and through whose eyes much of the action is seen."

White, Wm. A. God's Puppets.....W586g

"Five stories, two of them too long to be classed as 'short stories,' make up the book. The first four are related. They are all social studies of a small city west of the Mississippi. The last story, a whimsical little sketch, is in a class by itself. It was written by the author of 'The Court of Boyville,' just as the others were written by the author of 'A Certain Rich Man.' Contents: A Social Rectangle; The One a Pharisee; A Prosperous Gentleman; The Gods Arrive; The Strange Boy."

Williamson. The Lightning Conductor Discovers America .....W676li

After a lapse of several years, the Lightning Conductor appears in fiction again. It is an amusing tale and very good summer reading.

NON-FICTION

Munsterberg. Business Psychology.....150 M889b

"The book is a treatise on elementary psychology with special emphasis on those functions which are significant for business life. Part 1 introduces the subject with some general principles. Parts 2, 3 and 4 deal respectively with the cognitive, emotional, and activity aspects of mental life, while Part 5 treats of psychological differences in individuals and suggests some practical tests whereby the business man may determine the mental characteristics of his employes. In the last two parts of the book the principles discussed in the foregoing chapters are applied to actual industrial life."

Betts, Geo. H. Fathers and Mothers.....173 B466

"Prof. Betts was for seven years superintendent of schools in Iowa and since 1902 has been professor of psychology in Cornell college, Iowa. This book on the management of children treats of the necessity for the study of child nature and of the character and needs of each child by its parents. Heredity is considered under The Child and Its Ancestors and Immediate Heredity. Other chapters treat of The Roots of Disposition; From Innocence to Morality; Training in Religion; Passing Over From Childhood, etc. The style is simple and non-technical.

Webster's New International Dictionary..... R425 W495 1916

"In this volume of about 2,700 pages is presented a really new dictionary of the English language. It is the latest term in the series which was begun by Noah Webster, and which has been steadily and consistently developed under the management of a single publishing house from 1843 to the present time. Its immediate predecessor was Webster's International Dictionary of 1890, with the Supplement added in 1900. Of that work the new volume is a thorough reconstruction, embodying proved and established principles together with the results of the widest, the most recent, and the most analytical lexicographic research."

CAMPING OUT

Hough, Emerson. Out of Doors.....799 H814o

"As summer approaches, one's thoughts turn to vacation plans, and this is the time to read 'Out of Doors,' by Emerson Hough. For Mr. Hough the only vacation worthy of the name is one passed as near to nature as possible, and preferably in a tent. He has only contempt for the summer resort hotel. But he is thoroughly familiar with camp life, and overflowing with good advice for any one who wishes to try it. Here the prospective camper can learn all about different kinds of tents, the proper outfit to carry, how to protect himself from mosquitoes, what to do if he gets lost, and many other useful points. There are chapters on trout fishing, how to handle a gun, and how to use a bird dog. The writer thinks that camp life is adapted to women as well as men, and describes the fitting way for a woman to dress and otherwise conduct herself in camp. As for the benefits to be reaped, he says: 'For the nerve broken man or woman the wise doctor would prescribe just one treatment—no drugs, no stimulants, just sunshine and sleep and oxygen and good food, and freedom from all care. If some of these generally tired chaps, some of these generally harassed women could get out in camp in the wilderness somewhere for a few weeks, they would get a better run for their money than perhaps they could in any other way. At least, that is the hint which of all these seems most worth while.'"

THE SEA

*The sea! the sea! the open sea!
The blue, the fresh, the ever free
Without a mark, without a bound,
It runneth the earth's wide regions round;
It plays with the clouds; it mocks the skies;
Or like a cradled creature lies.*

*I'm on the sea! I'm on the sea!
I am where I would ever be;
With the blue above, and the blue below,
And silence whereso'er I go;
If a storm should come and awake the deep,
What matter? I shall ride and sleep.*

*I love, O, how I love to ride
On the fierce, foaming, bursting tide,
When every mad wave drowns the moon
Or whistles aloft his tempest tune,
And tells how goeth the world below.*

*I never was on the dull, tame shore,
But I loved the great sea more and more,
And backwards flew to her billowy breast,
Like a bird that seeketh its mother's nest;
And a mother she was, and is, to me;
For I was born on the open sea!*

*The waves were white, and red the morn,
In the noisy hour when I was born;
And the whale it whistled, the porpoise rolled,
And the dolphins bared their backs of gold;
And never was heard such an outcry wild
As welcomed to life the ocean-child!*

*I've lived since then, in calm and strife,
Full fifty summers, a sailor's life,
With wealth to spend and power to range,
But never have sought nor sighed for change;
And Death, whenever he comes to me,
Shall come on the wild, unbounded sea!*

THE SNOWING OF THE PINES

*Softer than silence, stiller than still air
Float down from high pine-boughs the slender leaves.
The forest floor its annual boon receives
That comes like snowfall, tireless, tranquil, fair.
Gently they glide, gently they clothe the bare
Old rocks with grace. Their fall a mantle weaves
Of paler yellow than autumnal sheaves
Or those strange blossoms the witch-hazels wear.
Athwart long aisles the sunbeams pierce their way;
High up, the crows are gathering for the night;
The delicate needles fill the air; the jay
Takes through their golden mist his radiant flight;
They fall and fall, till at November's close
The snow-flakes drop as lightly—snows on snows.*

Modern Drama

This is the day of great popularity of the drama, and books about dramatists and the stage, both the legitimate and the moving picture stage are in greater demand than ever before. The great writers of Europe are using the drama as a means of literary expression. The Russian authors with Chekhov, Andreyeff and Gorky as leaders are using the drama to cry abroad the sorrows and abuses of their land. The great Scandinavian Ibsen, who was the pioneer of the realistic drama, turned a torch on the domestic problems of his day. In Germany, Hauptmann has written powerful dramas, in France Brieux and Hervier have made the drama a powerful instrument to redress various social and civil evils. The well-known English playwright G. Bernard Shaw, shocks his readers into a consciousness of the fact that all that is, is not always right.

Galsworthy, his more solid and skilful contemporary, also dramatizes the political and economic phases of England's daily life. The Scotch and Irish plays show in a more graceful form the daily life of the people known and loved by Barrie, and Synge, Lady Gregory and Yeats.

Alias David Grayson

David Grayson, author of the well-beloved Adventures in Contentment, Friendly Road, Adventures in Friendship and Hempfield, has at last been discovered. David Grayson is, alas, only an alias. But the real man, the writer, whose homely philosophy of life has renewed joy in hearts of many of us, is a man who leads much the same busy, hustling life as many of us, and his name is Ray Stannard Baker. Mr. Baker was born in Lansing, Michigan, in 1870.

He studied at Michigan Agricultural College and then at the University of Michigan. Newspaper work on the Chicago Record Herald occupied him for a few years and then he undertook the associate editorship of McClures, after he had several years experience as manager of the McClure's syndicate.

He has published these six books over his own name: Boy's Book of Inventions, Our New Prosperity, Seen in Germany, Following the Color Line, New Ideals in Healing, Spiritual Unrest.

As a reporter he has a wonderful skill at drawing pen portraits. His last, on President Wilson, appeared in the October issue of a popular magazine. His kindly sympathy and tolerance give his writing a touch of reality that makes one say as he reads, "That reminds me of the time I made that very mistake or experienced that same success."

Many people have been accredited the authorship of Mr. Baker's books, and so strong has been the curiosity and interest aroused by the simple goodness of these books, that finally Mr. Baker has allowed his name to be known.

It is almost impossible to overestimate the appeal that the Grayson books have had in certain sections of the United States and a club has come into existence known as "The Graysonians" for those who accept the Graysonian philosophy. The Ideals of this organization are summed up as follows: A true Graysonian will stop and retrace his steps to help an unknown brother find a lost bolt, and then drive out of his way to take this unknown brother home; he will stop when he sees the tired-looking man walking in front and have him put in the buggy the heavy bundle that weighs him down, saying: "Get in, pull up the lap robe and be comfortable;" he will give a hearty handshake when introduced to a stranger instead of a lift, lifeless touch; he will smile into the face of the sorrowing one with a smile of sympathy and understanding; in otherwords he or she will travel the Friendly Road."

To quote from Mr. John S. Phillip's article on Mr. Baker: "Ray Baker is naturally a good neighbor, a participating citizen, the friend of his community and the folks therein."

"In Grayson he enlarged his friendships, gave himself to all his readers, as he had so long to the close circle of personal friends. For the Grayson Stories depict Ray Baker pretty much as he is. It is a better picture of his spirit than any one else can write for it is drawn unconsciously behind the screen of the pseudonym."

Books by David Grayson

Adventures in Contentment.....E3193

"A young man, broken in health under the strain of business life in a large city, buys a small farm. He tells of his life, his work, his new neighbors, in a pleasant, leisurely style, with a cheerful, humorous, philosophic spirit, emphasizing the attractions and ignoring the disadvantages of farm life."—A. L. A. Booklist.

Adventures in Friendship.....E3194

The author's philosophy is aptly expressed in the following quotation:

"Thus flowing with life, self-surrendering to life, a man becomes indispensable to life; he is absolutely necessary to the conduct of this universe. And it is the feeling of being necessary, of being desired, flowing into a man that produces the satisfaction of contentment. Often and often I think to myself:

"These fields have need of me; my horse whinnies when he hears my step; my dog barks a welcome. These, my neighbors, are glad of me. The corn comes up fresh and green to my planting; my buckwheat bears richly. I am indispensable in this place. What is more satisfactory to the human heart than to be needed and to know we are needed?"

Friendly Road .....E3196

The author's preface gives the keynote:

I invite you to travel with me upon this friendly road. You may find, as I did, something which will cause you for a time to forget yourself into contentment. But if you chance to be a truly serious person, put down my book. Let nothing stay your hurried steps, nor keep you from your way.

As for those of us who remain, we will loiter as much as ever we please. We'll take toll of these spring days, we'll stop wherever evening overtakes us, we'll eat the food of hospitality—and make friends for life!

Hempfield .....F13347

"Friendly, genial, sympathetic, with a quiet humor and understanding of human nature. The story centers around the town paper, Anthy, the delightful owner, the 'Captain' editor who can write 'Fudge' over the story of 'a fellow named Wright, says he can fly,' Fergus MacGregor the printer, champion for Anthy, and the irrepressible Nort who introduces more romance."—A. L. A. Booklist.

To Our Business Women

In answer to the demand by our business women for books of suggestive and helpful type, we are reserving a shelf in the library for women. This will be labeled "Business Women's Shelf" and on it will be found inspirational books, such as Helen Keller's "Optimism," Wilson's "On Being Human," Bennett's "Mental Efficiency," Cabot's "Prescriptions," Marden's "Successful Attitude" and many other books on business ethics. James' famous psychology and Schreiner's "Woman and Labor" will be there among the classics that a business woman should make it her business to read. We shall have the books on special subjects, i. e., stenography, correct English, punctuation for our stenographers; filing and indexing, auditing and accounting for women in the clerical departments; textiles, advertising and so on throughout the departments.

It is often said that boys and men are much more ambitious than girls and women and from the books they read, one would certainly draw such a conclusion. There are many books in our library that will be of distinct value to our women. The problem is to get the information and the reader together and this is the purpose of our Business Women's Shelf. Every girl in some degree controls her own success and no girl can blame anyone but herself if her grammar is bad, when there are dozens of books on correct English in the library and courses in English in the free night schools.

Our general reference shelves hold a storehouse of practical knowledge. The Encyclopaedias, Directories, Atlases, Dictionaries, Gazeteers and reference books of all kinds are on the shelf waiting for you women of the house to come and claim that share in the general knowledge and efficiency that marks the work of our company.

The following list gives the names of some of the books which will be of distinct value to business women. Come and use some of them.

Keller, Helen. Optimism.....149.5 K282

When we read of a girl, deaf, dumb and blind being an optimist, can we be anything but cheerful ourselves?

James, Wm. Psychology.....150 J23p

A psychology that is basic and is written as interestingly as a novel.

Bennett, E. A. The Human Machine.....170 B43h

The body and brain constitute a fine machine and should be so used and cared for. He tells how to do this.

Marvin, D. E. Curiosities in Proverbs.....R398.9

"Proverbs about proverbs, Singular proverbs, Obscure proverbs, Bible proverbs, Christmas-Easter proverbs, Weather proverbs, Wit and Humor in proverbs and Rhyming proverbs are some of the classes into which the compiler groups the interesting material of his book. He says: "No attempt has been made to add another collection of proverbs to the large number that have been prepared by students of antiquity, but rather to take advantage of their researches and select and classify a sufficient number of authenticated adages, maxims, aphorisms, phrases, and other popular dicta, to show the forms and grouping to which the common sayings of men are liable, and to add thereto such explanations, notes, and quotations as may be useful or interesting."—Book Review Digest.

PSYCHOLOGY

Hazlitt, Henry. Thinking as a Science.....150 H339

"It will be remembered that Arnold Bennett in 'How to live on twenty-four hours a day' says in connection with learning to concentrate on a certain subject, 'You will not have gone ten yards before your mind has skipped away under your very eyes and is larking round the corner with another subject. Bring it back by the scruff of the neck.' Mr. Hazlitt in his stimulating monograph tells how to get one's thoughts by the 'scruff' of the neck. He prescribes a constructive plan, with methods most approved by our experimental psychologists, for training the mind to become a good thinking instrument. The chapters show the scope of the book: The neglect of thinking; Thinking with method; A few cautions; Concentration; Prejudice and uncertainty; Debate and conversation; Thinking and reading; Writing one's thoughts; Things worth thinking; Thinking as an art; Books on thinking."—Book Review Digest.

"A victorious attitude is half the secret of success. Look successful and confident and sure of yourself and your way will be made easy. Look like a failure and you will fail. This is the message of Mr. Marden's first essay. Others follow in the same encouraging, optimistic vein. Some of the titles are: Making dreams come true; Attracting the poorhouse; The suggestion of inferiority; The triumph of health ideals; Preparing the mind for sleep; How to stay young; Our oneness with infinite life."—Book Review Digest.

FICTION

Adams, S. H. Unspeakable Perk.....Ad18u

"A story of romantic adventure in a Caribbean island republic. For reasons known only to his own scientific mind, the man called Perkins chooses to go disguised behind disfiguring goggles. Polly Brewster, the wilful American heiress who has trifled light-heartedly with his affections, regarding him as in some way akin to the beetles he studies, experiences a shock when she first sees him in an un-goggled state, so to speak. She learns that in appearance as in spirit, the 'Unspeakable Perk' is very much a man. By implication the story offers a tribute to the public health service and the new kind of courage that it calls forth."

Allen, Robt. Captain Gardiner of International Police .....A1541

"The European war has long been over when this story opens. A world federation has been formed and an international police force has kept the world at peace. A strong movement is on foot to reduce this force; for another war has become unthinkable. Captain Leslie Gardiner, a member of the international army, has just asked to be transferred to the Atlantic coast division where he can settle down permanently in New York, marry Evelyn Thornton, and live happily, when an order comes sending him out to the Orient on a secret mission. The task intrusted to him is a delicate one, leading him into danger, and in a moment of stress he plays the coward, buying his life at the price of honor. Thereafter, in the strenuous events that follow, he devotes himself to regaining what he has lost, allowing those at home to believe him dead. And what follows is another world war, between East and West."

Andrews, M. S. Eternal feminine.....An27et

"This volume of stories will be welcomed by the readers of Mrs. Andrews' former volume, 'The Eternal Masculine,' as well as by many new readers. The stories here grouped are among the cleverest she has ever written and are linked together by playful satire of feminine weaknesses and whims which characterizes each of them."

Andrews, Mary. Old Glory.....An270

"Three slight stories which center around the American flag. The first, 'The colors,' was published in Scribner's Magazine for July, 1916. It deals with a young American naval officer, who, under the influence of hashish, insulted the flag and later refused to redeem his position. He resigned from the navy, in course of time claimed the English title which his family had allowed to lie dormant, and went with his daughter to make his home in England. When a possible war between the countries is threatening he finds he is at heart an American and returns to his native land. The two shorter stories are entitled 'The stranger within the gates' and 'The star-spangled banner.'"

Barbour, R. H. Heart's Content.....B234h

"Mr. Ralph Henry Barbour's annual contribution to the season's fiction is as the name indicates, a love story with a happy ending. . . . The hero, Allan Shortland, asks the heroine, Beryl Vernon, whom he has resolved to win, for congratulations on his approaching marriage before securing her consent to play a leading part in that ceremony. . . . It should be added that the story is not unknown to magazine readers under the title 'The happy man.' "

Barbour, H. B. Left Guard Gilbert.....yB2341

Another school story of athletics.

Bartlett, F. D. Wall Street Girl.....B284

The story of the struggle of a young broker to decide between two girls, one a society butterfly and the other an efficient and attractive stenographer in the business office in which he works.

Beach, Rex. Rainbow's End.....B352r

A thrilling story of Cuba before and during the Spanish-American war. There is a lost treasure, fighting, filibustering, humor, and romantic love.

Bennett, A. Lion's Share.....B4391i

This is one of Bennett's books which is not a serious novel. It is a farce and a clever one.

Beresford. These Lynnekers .....B452

"A realistic, detailed presentation of the self satisfaction and lack of initiative which had developed in an English rector's family through constantly taking the line of least resistance. Dick, the youngest boy, insists on recognizing facts as they are regardless of what others may think, and his life from boyhood to manhood is an interesting study—in contrast to the rest of these Lynnekers."

Boltome, Phyllis. Dark Tower.....B659d

"A rich, well-knit, full flavored novel, set in rural England and snow-capped Switzerland, and dealing with the wild-tempered Staines family and some others who are important through their relations to it; introducing:

"Old Sir Peter Staines, ex-Admiral of the English navy, with a combustible temper and a marvelous flow of unprofane profanity; and his wife—they belong together—who is his entirely adequate mate.

"Major Winn Staines, thirty-five years old, the chief character, just returned from India, and just married to a pretty, selfish, mendacious, pink-and-white 'cat.'

"Estelle, the 'cat.'

"Claire, less than twenty, the ideal mate for Major Staines, whom he meets too late.

"Lionel Drummond, comrade in arms, best man at the Major's wedding, one hundred per cent pure friend.

"Two daughters of Sir Peter—one has married a frightened curate, the other a prize fighting groom from her father's stables."

Brady, Cyrus T. The More Excellent Way.....B729m

"A story of modern society and the divorce question, the scenes in New York, Sorrento, Bermuda and Reno. The really serious purpose and telling lessons of the book are for swift succession of its dramatic developments."

Brown, Alice. Prisoner ..... B812p

"Jeffrey Blake, in order to satisfy the demands of an extravagant wife, becomes a defaulter and is sent to prison for a term of years. He develops rapidly under his misfortune and leaves prison with the determination to reconstruct his life. He wants to go West where he is not known; but the appeal of his ailing father to remain at home keeps him in the New England town that saw his first prosperity and his downfall. Here he fights his battle under circumstances made the more trying by the presence in the town of his selfish and unhappy wife. Into the plot of the story enters the mystery of a diamond necklace which introduces the De Maupassant motif only with more variations."

Burnett, F. H. Land of the Blue Flower..... B9341

Camp, W. C. Danny, the Freshman..... C15df

"Danny Phipps, as a somewhat younger boy, has been the hero of two earlier stories by Mr. Camp. In this story he is a Yale freshman. Danny is something of a firebrand and his prep school reputation has preceded him to college. He finds that his new coaches look on him with suspicion as a possible trouble maker. His efforts to master his hot temper and to establish a new name for himself form the substance of this story. He is dogged in his determination and his election to the captaincy of the freshman nine comes to crown his perseverance."

Cannan, Gilbert. Three sons and a Mother..... C164

"This is the story of Margaret Keith Lawrie, a Scotch widow, who brought up her five children, James, Thomas, John, Margaret and Mary, on ninety pounds a year and then, believing that the way of advancement for them lay in England not Scotland, took them away from their native village to Thrigsby, a thriving industrial city across the border. The fate of each member of the family is followed with considerable minuteness, but the author has bestowed most care on Jamie, the eldest and the one who does not respond to the bracing air of Thrigsby industrialism. Tom and John are at once at home in it. They make fortunes and marry after the manner of honest, respectable citizens. But Jamie, always in revolt, makes but a mediocre success of his life. The time of the story is the middle of the nineteenth century with the American civil war playing havoc with the English cotton industry."

Chase, M. E. Girl from the Big Horn Country.... C386

"Virginia Hunter leaves her father's cattle ranch in Wyoming, says goodbye to her boy chum, Donald, and goes east to the school where her New England mother was educated. Her last promise to Donald is that she won't be a 'young lady' when she comes back. She keeps it, for the school is a wholesome one for normal, well-bred girls, and the months spent there are filled with the usual school-girl adventures with classmates and teachers, extended and tempered to suit the breezy frankness of Virginia's western character."

Curtis, Philip. Between Two Worlds.....C945

The story of a young man who sought for a genuine unspoiled woman and how he found her—a cabaret singer! The hero dared forget the traditions and restrictions of the world to which he belonged.

Dalrymple. Traumerei .....D169t

How the innocent purchase of a battered violin led Kirke Bentley to Italy, adventure and finally love is told in this book. One will find here no depressing allegiance to fact; nor is there anything of the sadness that does not pass away. But whoever responds to the enchantment of youth, braving danger with head held high, of youth with its abounding vitality and its fine gift of love, will find here a tale to treasure and reread.

Day, Holman. Blow the Man Down.....D331b

"A story of the sea and the New England Coast, fresh in its setting, alive with new, virile and picturesque figures, colored with the romance of a great love, a novel which thrills throughout with action and the very spirit of the sea. Quaint and strange people lend a fresh humor to a story which passes from laughter to a dramatic contest."

Deland, M. Rising Tide.....D374r

Out of the vast woman's movement Mrs. Deland has selected one passionate young devotee for special analysis. Her novel is not a study of the movement as a whole; it is a study of its manifestations in Frederica Payton. Freddy, or even Fred to her friends, is decidedly of the present generation, bitterly at war with the generation preceding hers, and the one preceding that, too, although between herself and her grandmother there are occasional flashes of sympathy. Frederica organizes suffrage clubs, makes speeches to striking garment workers, and opens a real estate office. She prides herself on her frankness, and when she falls in love with a man she tells him so. And there comes the first blow to Frederica's pride, the deathblow to her youthful cock-sureness. At the end of the book she is about to be married to another man, one who loves her devotedly and with whom she finds 'contentment.' The story appeared as a serial in the Woman's Home Companion, December, 1915-1916."

Dodge, Louis. Bonnie May.....D663

"It is a cheerful, beguiling, appealing tale and one that is likely to find its way just as does Bonnie May in its pages to the hearts of all who make its acquaintance."

Duncan, Frances. Roberta of Roseberry Gardens. D912r

"Miss Duncan gives in this novel an attractive little tale built around commercial floriculture. The narrative is slight, placid and simple. A girl becomes the secretary of the owner of Roseberry Gardens, falls in love with and finally marries an exemplary and attractive young man."—Boston Transcript.

Fitch, G. Petey Simmons at Siwash.....F552p

A posthumous volume of Siwash adventures by one of the great American humorists.

Garland, Hamlin. They of the High Trails.....G184t

"A group of stories representative of the author's work of the past ten and more years. All are stories of the Rockies, written with none of the sensationalism that characterizes the usual western tale. Contents: The grub-staker; The cow-boss; The remittance man; The lonesome man; The trail tramp; The prospector; The outlaw; The leaser; The forest ranger."—Book Review Digest.

Gogol, N. V. Mantle and Other Stories.....G558

"Five short stories with an introduction quoted from Prosper Merimee. Gogol's powers as a satirist, emphasized in the introduction, are best shown in the first story, in which the delight of a poor, underpaid government clerk in a new coat proves the man's undoing. This tale was issued in translation in 1886, as 'The cloak.' The other stories are 'The nose,' a fanciful tale, quite absurd, 'Memoirs of a madman,' a remarkable study of a deranged mind, 'A May night,' a story of Little Russia, and 'The Viy,' a Little Russian folktale."—Book Review Digest.

Hale, B. F. R. The Nest Builder.....H13

Love at first sight and speedy marriage between a home-loving woman and a man of strong artistic temperament. Which will prevail in a clash of interest and will? "The story is clearly conceived and cleanly carried through. Its life is genuine and of unfailing interest."—Boston Herald.

Harben, Wm. Second Choice.....H213s

Quickened by the spirit of youth with its aspirations and its love-glow, and containing a chuckling new vein of humor—a novel of Georgia by Will Harben, but more than that, a novel of intensely human people for every reader everywhere.

Harraden, B. Guiding Thread.....H236g

A beautiful country girl, married to a great scholar, finding herself almost his intellectual slave, revolts. Adventures of no wild order come into her life before she realizes what freedom means.

Harris, Cora. Circuit Rider's Wife.....H24w

"Life on a Methodist circuit in the South thirty years ago, seen through the eyes of the devoted but hardly devout wife of an unworldly and intensely itinerant preacher. Hewlett, M. Love and Lucy.....H4981

In this novel Hewlett deals with modern subjects and forsakes his strife of prose poetry which made him famous. His theme is the awakening of the souls of a married couple of the solid English middle or professional class—conventionalized in the extreme, yet as the event shows, with souls capable of indefinite and exalted flights. In the opening scenes we find a love, fundamental, genuine and true, but starved by the outward elements of conventionality. The characters begin to play upon each other and gradually evolve the sentimental values that had been hidden; and in the end we see a perfect, charming love. And it is all done in that romantic, delightful strain that Maurice Hewlett has made his own.

Howells, W. D. Daughter of the Storage.....H839d

"The title story of this collection suggests the delightful idea that a great storage warehouse may be a little social world in itself, a community made up of those who store or unstore goods according as they go to housekeeping, break up housekeeping, spend the winter abroad or go to the country for the summer. There are nineteen titles included in the table of contents; of these some refer to other short stories, some to poems, narratives in verse, and two to short plays."—Book Review Digest.

Howell, W. D. Leatherwood God.....H8391

Hueston, Ethel. Prudence Says So.....H871p

"Prudence has left the parsonage but her influence remains. 'Prudence says so' is a statement of finality with Fairy, the twins and Connie. This second book about the parsonage family is made up of unrelated episodes in which one or more of the four lively girls figure. A wedding and two love affairs ending in happy engagements are among them."—Book Review Digest.

Hughes, R. Thirteenth Commandment.....H874t

"When Daphne Kip of Cleveland goes to buy her Rousseau in New York, she realizes for the first time how much work it costs a father or husband to dress a daughter or wife in the way she demands to be dressed. The knowledge is pressed home to her by the scene between her brother and his new wife after the latter had brought him into debt for an expensive and unnecessary gown. She determines to postpone her marriage until she can support herself and meets with the usual vicissitudes of a young, beautiful, untrained girl seeking work in New York. She fails on the stage and eventually opens a lingerie shop in which she makes a success. Johnston, A. F. Georgina of the Rainbows.....yJ641g

"Old Provincetown on Cape Cod is the scene of the quaint and pleasing story. The venerable bell ringer, still a notable figure in the community, is one of the characters. Indeed, in a way the story centers about him and his little friend, Georgina Huntingdon, whose father, a scientist in the service of the United States navy, is far over seas, and whose sweet little mother lives in the old Huntingdon homestead at Provincetown. Georgina is an explorative person, even at the age of 9, and she makes many friends of many sorts, and by sheer force of vitality, good will, and amiable inquisitiveness digs up hidden secrets, lets the light into closed chambers of the heart, and brings peace and wholesomeness to the turbulent and morbid."

Kingsley, Chas. Tutor's Story.....K614t

It is a story typical of the English life of the period. A tutor, in himself an unattractive character and personality, yet through his adventures among the English country aristocracy a most interesting figure, relates in the first person a tale of romance and adventure in the lives of the English squires and of the country people of the time. The completion of the story has been ably done by the novelist's daughter, who herself has achieved fame in the fiction world. Rewritten by "Lucas Malet" "The Tutor's Story" becomes a literary event of the season.

Kipling, R. Indian Tales.....K628i

Lea, F. H. Chloe Malone.....L462c

"A charming love story of New Orleans, with a captivating heroine who wanted to marry a millionaire."

Locke, W. J. Wonderful Year.....L796wo

"Every lover of 'The Beloved Vagabond,' of 'Septimus,' and of 'Jaffrey,' will welcome this new Locke novel. To his long list of quaint and ever-charming characters is now added the lovable Fortinbras, Merchant of Happiness and godfather to all the storm-tossed dreamers of the Quartier Latin.

"The Wonedrful Year" relates the wanderings of a young Englishman, teacher of French in an obscure boarding-school, who migrates to France, and there finds nourishment for his soul. There is a glimpse, too, of Egypt and in the end, of the great war."

London, J. Turtles of Tasman.....L846t

A collection of the best new stories by Mr. London, containing tales of adventure, of character of unusual experiences in unusual places.

Lutz, Grace. A Voice in the Wilderness.....L978v

There is an abundance of humor and amusing incidents in this story of a girl tenderfoot and the way in which she reformed a rough Western community. And wrapped up in the fun, so that it is a part of it, is a spiritual note which makes Grace Lutz's stories so popular.

McCutcheon, G. B. From the Housetops.....M139fr

Dr. Braden Thorpe, a surgeon and the hero of the story, is a humanitarian—but he has advanced ideas on "humanitarianism" toward the hopelessly afflicted. Imagine a great Trust to promote the idea that Society should have the right to take the final step in alleviating hopeless, human suffering. Then, too, a great fortune, a great love, and a great greed complicate the plot and the destinies of the characters.

Marquis, Don. Cruise of the Jasper B.....M384

"The Jasper B. never got outside the little canal on the south shore of Long Island where Cleggett first found her, but it is doubtful if even the China seas to which he had designed to sail her could have abounded more plentifully in adventure. Clement J. Cleggett had been a drab-colored copy reader on a New York morning paper up to the time when Uncle Tom's legacy fell into his hands. The telegram announcing the good news came to him while he sat at his desk pursuing his routine duties. He became a changed man at once, rose, told the managing editor what he thought of him, and went forth into a new world. The discovery of the Jasper B. lying derelict on the south shore of Long Island is the first step in a series of fantastic adventures involving gunmen, anarchist poets, militant suffragettes, famous detectives, Flatbush spinsters and the English aristocracy."—Book Review Digest.

Martin, G. M. Emmy Lou's road to Grace.....M365e

A sequel to the famous Emmy Lou of years ago.

Mathewson, C. First Base Faulkner.....M246f

"This is the third of Christy Mathewson's series of stories for boys. Joe Faulkner comes to Amesville, Ohio, to live with his Aunt Sarah. His father's death has left his mother and him without means of support. His mother finds a paying position in Columbus and Joe, although he at first wants to go to work, too, is persuaded that it will be better to accept Aunt Sarah's hospitality and finish his high school course. But, with the manliness which is characteristic of Mr. Mathewson's young heroes, he refuses to be dependent and starts out to pay his own way. His success in carrying out this plan holds a place in the story of equal importance with his baseball triumphs."—Book Review Digest.

Maupassant, Guy de. Yvette.....M445

"'Yvette,' a novelette of something over 100 pages, and ten shorter stories, make up this collection of newly translated tales from the works of Maupassant. Austerity, courage and honesty are the outstanding qualities of his work, as summed up by Joseph Conrad in the introduction. He is pronounced an intensely national writer, wholly French in 'his logic, in his clearness, in his aesthetic and moral conceptions.' He is universally renowned, but not universally popular. 'What is wanting to his universal success is the mediocrity of an obvious and appealing tenderness.' The stories following 'Yvette' are Mademoiselle Fifi, Two friends, A duel, Old mother Savage, Miss Harriet, The umbrella, The piece of string, Queen Hortense, At sea, A sale."—Book Review Digest.

Merwin, Samuel. The Trufflers.....M559t

The Peter Mann of magazine story fame here undertakes to write a story about a group of people whom he terms "The Trufflers."

Norris, K. Heart of Rachel.....N794h

"In 'The Heart of Rachel' Mrs. Norris has told a story of the corroding influences of modern society on domestic ideals. Rachel Fairfax, a beautiful girl possessed of potential strength of character, marries and faces some of the hardest problems that a woman is called upon to bear. Mrs. Norris has no need to overdraw her picture; all the elements of romance, of tragedy, of achievement, are in the situation she presents and it is the final wresting of victory from a cumulation of errors and entanglements that shows the growth in strength and beauty of Rachel's soul."

Onions, Mrs. Oliver (Ruck, Berta). In Another Girl's Shoes .....On4i

Oppenheim. Kingdom of the Blind.....Op5k

Parker, Gilbert. The World for Sale.....P225wo

A new romantic novel of the Canadian Northwest. Mr. Parker weaves into a fascinating whole the loves and hate, ambitions of a great builder, a beautiful gypsy, Indians, a musician and a wastrel.

Parrish, Gladys. Carfrae's Comedy.....P249c

"Geo. Carfrae is writing a play for Blanche Benwell. Mrs. Benwell has had little stage experience. She gives recitations in drawing rooms. But Carfrae has discovered the secret of her success, her ability to be herself, and in the play he gives her a part which is essentially herself. She is an unusual type for an actress. She lives in a convent and is devoutly religious, and so true to her Roman Catholic beliefs that she looks on herself as married, although she has been for some years divorced. Carfrae's devotion to her is largely impersonal, as is her feeling for him, but with Julian Eames, a different element is introduced. The story is concerned with the spiritual struggle that ensues when she realizes her love for Eames, and with the changes in herself which lead Carfrae first to alter and finally to rewrite his comedy."—Book Review Digest.

Parrish, Randall. Contraband.....P249co

The outbreak of the Great War and an attempt by a big speculator to organize a copper pool supplies the motif for the latest effort of this novelist. The scene is laid almost entirely on the high seas, first on the private yacht of the Copper King, then on a big freighter, filled with contraband of war, attempting to run the blockade. With the sinking of this vessel the action passes to a gruesome death ship, laden with treasure and horrors.

Perry, Montayne. Blossomy Cottage.....P429

"A short happy story of a settlement worker forced into the country for his health, and finding opportunity there for the same kind of work under the name of rural betterment, is told in 'Blossomy Cottage.' The family began it, especially the sister who took the district school and developed it. How they found Blossomy Cottage in the wilderness, and how they made their way into the hearts of all the people, are told here simply but effectively."—Book Review Digest.

Rholfs, A. K. G. Chief Legatee..... R347c

The disappearance of a bride ten minutes after her wedding and the solution of the mystery form the theme of the tale. The book is a new edition of one of the author's earlier stories.

Rholfs, A. K. G. To the Minute..... R347t

Rinehart, M. R. Tish ..... R472t

"Letitia Carberry, known to her intimates as 'Tish,' was one of three middle-aged friends and the moving spirit of their spicy adventures. 'Aggie,' the secretary of the woman's prohibition party, was of the temperament which observed the anniversary of her lover's death for twenty years, but she and 'Lizzie' each found herself involved by Tish in a doubtful motor race, in the preservation of a young Syrian of rare beauty and suicidal tendencies, in simple living in the woods and in untold predicaments from which they are rescued only by the opportune good sense of Tish's nephew, Charlie Sands."—Book Review Digest.

"Wade Hildreth, landing in New York on a business mission, one item of which is to procure for his wealthy client in England a necklace valued at $2,000,000, regrets that he has but two days to stay. He would like to see something of the wonderful city of which he has had but a glimpse. He is permitted to see something of it, and under most strange circumstances. From the first moment of his arrival he is involved in a gigantic criminal plot, although his first inkling of the state of affairs comes only when Morn Light, the star in the musical comedy he has dropped in to see, mysteriously summons him to her dressing room. There follows a most exciting series of incidents, through which Hildreth, Morn, and the diamond necklace are carried to final triumph."—Book Review Digest.

Roe, V. E. A Divine Egotist..... R62d

The redemption of a town and of a man form the theme of this story. The scene is laid in the Middle West, the interest centering about an estate of one hundred acres, upon which lived Velviny Craith, novelist, philanthropist, reformer, and withal heroine of the story. And because she loved to see people happy she took the peculiar method of offering her home as a refuge to all the human flotsam and jetsam which came her way—old and crippled people, ex-convicts, and even one blind baby. A few miles away lay the town, a lost, gasping thing in the hands of greedy, dishonest politicians. The political gang in control was bossed by an unscrupulous man of brains and personality, whose tool was a Southern gentleman with the besetting sin of drink. Velving Craith determined to rescue this man, and by his means to save the town—and thereby hangs the tale.

Rolland, Romain. Jean Christophe.....R647

"This long, vivid, fascinating tale of the life of a musician. . . . It is a new kind of fiction. . . . The records of friendship which Jean Christophe presents are unequalled. There is a singular charm, due to his fiery and concentrated method—for, despite the length of the work, it is done in an extraordinary succinct and compressed manner. . . . a neglect of it seems to one who has read it an offense against citizenship in the world of letters."

Seton, E. T. Preacher of Cedar Mountain.....Se77p

Sinclair, B. Big Timber.....Si6b

Another western story with the atmosphere of the west.

Smith, F. H. & Smith, F. B. Enoch Crane.....Sm56e

The story is of New York; it has much of the flavor of "Peter"—its characters as lovable, its scenes as colorful. There is a preface in which F. Berkeley Smith explains how, in completing the book, he followed a full and elaborate synopsis prepared by his father for the whole novel.

Taggart, M. A. Hollyhock House.....yT128ho

"The story of the Garden girls, Mary, Jane and Florimel, who had bloomed in their garden under the guardianship of their father's friend and their young half-uncle. After their father's death, their mother had left them for the glamour of the footlights. But when they were grown to womanhood and had learned that she had lost her beautiful voice, they gladly welcomed her back, and with the help of her garden and their friends tried to make her happy. It was not until Mary met with a serious accident that Mrs. Garden realized all that she had lost when she left her babies."—Book Review Digest.

Titus, Harold. I Conquered.....T54i

"Back to New York from college, where he had wasted his opportunities, Danny Lenox is greeted by his father with 'How much will you take to go?' Denounced for his extravagance and his debauchery Danny is first stunned then piqued into replying, 'Keep your money. . . . I'll get out without your help. Some day I'll show you what a puny thing this faith of yours is!' There is money enough in his pocket to buy a ticket to Colt, Colorado, whither he goes without plan or prospect. He falls in with a kindly old ranchman who needs a man, and his serious business of regeneration begins at once. The story is one of his fight to make a man of himself."—Book Review Digest.

Tobenkin, Elias. Witte Arrives.....T554

"The story of the assimilation of an immigrant, a Russian Jew. The process commenced when, on his arrival in a western town, Emil Witkowski, a lad of ten, was dressed in American clothes; and it reached its consummation when Witte, the editor, writes of American life, problems, and ideals. The struggle in the new world, its disappointments, tragedies, and victories are sympathetically portrayed and the telling will help interpret to the native American the trials and the idealism of some of those who 'arrive.'"—Book Review Digest.

Tracy, L. Day of Wrath.....T674

"A story of the early days of the war. Captain Arthur Dalroy and Irene Beresford meet on the platform of a Berlin railway station. He renders her a service in difficulty and the two travel together toward the Belgian border. Before they reach it war is declared between Germany and England and together they endure the hardships of aliens in an enemy's land. But greater trials are before them. They cross the border only just ahead of the invading Germans, and thereafter their lot is thrown in with that of the persecuted Belgians. The dramatic movement of the story comes when they are rescued by a party of newly arrived 'Tommies.'"—Book Review Digest.

Verrill, A. H. Marooned in the Forest.....V612

"The story of a primitive struggle for life in the forest of the far north. Lost in the heart of the great woods without food, fire, weapons or compass, a youth of ingenuity and courage fights for his life amidst conditions as primitive as ever any cave dweller faced. He snares game by means of rude traps and dead-falls; he hunts bears and deer with arrow heads he chipped from quartz as any Indian might have done; and he fashions clothing from the skins of animals. Boys who delight in camp life will find this hero's experiences full of valuable suggestions."—Book Review Digest.

Walpole, A. Dark Forest.....W165d

"In this extraordinary novel the author of Fortitude, etc., has succeeded in re-thinking the Russian novel in terms of his own knowledge of life and character. Mystical, poetical, spiritual, the charm of this book is the triumph of the soul over disaster."

Webster, H. K. Painted Scene.....W393p

Mr. Webster knows the stage girl and depicts her as she has not been shown before.

Whitman, S. Children of Hope.....W595c

In this story of the three young women of vaulting ambitions, but insufficiently furnished forth with talent, the author is quite too detailed and prolix. There are spots of laboratory-like minuteness, important in character development, which frankly bore. Much of the time the young women aren't particularly human or likable, but they all turn out interestingly and logically. To those who have no talent the author gives husbands, and to the other one, promise of success and loneliness. If it were a more concise tale it would be more read.

Wells, H. G. Mr. Britling Sees It Through.....W464m

In this stirring story Mr. Wells reveals the true heart and mind of the English people. He pictures the England of today in a way that cannot be easily forgotten—so vividly does he draw his characters and the scenes through which they move with high courage and heroism. Mr. Wells' new novel carries a profound message to all Americans, but the chief interest of the book is in the story itself—the life of Mr. Britling and his family—this is what wins and holds the reader's attention.

Athletics—1916 Season

On September 16th, 1916, the Seventh Annual Track and Field Meet of the Homan Athletic Association was held on the Homan Field. The weather was perfect, for the sun was behind clouds part of the afternoon and the air was balmy. A special feature of the afternoon was the drill of the cadets from the Great Lakes Training Station. Eighty girls from Departments 146, 147, 162, 163, 171, danced.

About 20,000 people witnessed the Meet. The Pirates won the Championship Title with 77 points, the highest record ever made by a team, the Athletics following with  $46\frac{1}{2}$  points, Shippers 19 points, Cubs  $17\frac{1}{2}$ , Orioles 16, Clothiers 13.

George Holt of the Pirates made  $16\frac{1}{4}$  points, winning the Individual Point score with the highest record yet won on our field.

Many visiting athletes took part in Special Invitation events.

SHOP EARLY!

*If you buy a Christmas present,
Buy it now!*

*If it be for prince or peasant,
Buy it now!*

*Buy it early in November,
Or at least before December;
You'll be glad if you remember—
Buy it now!*

*While the counters stretch before you,
Buy it now!*

*While there are no crowds to bore you,
Buy it now!*

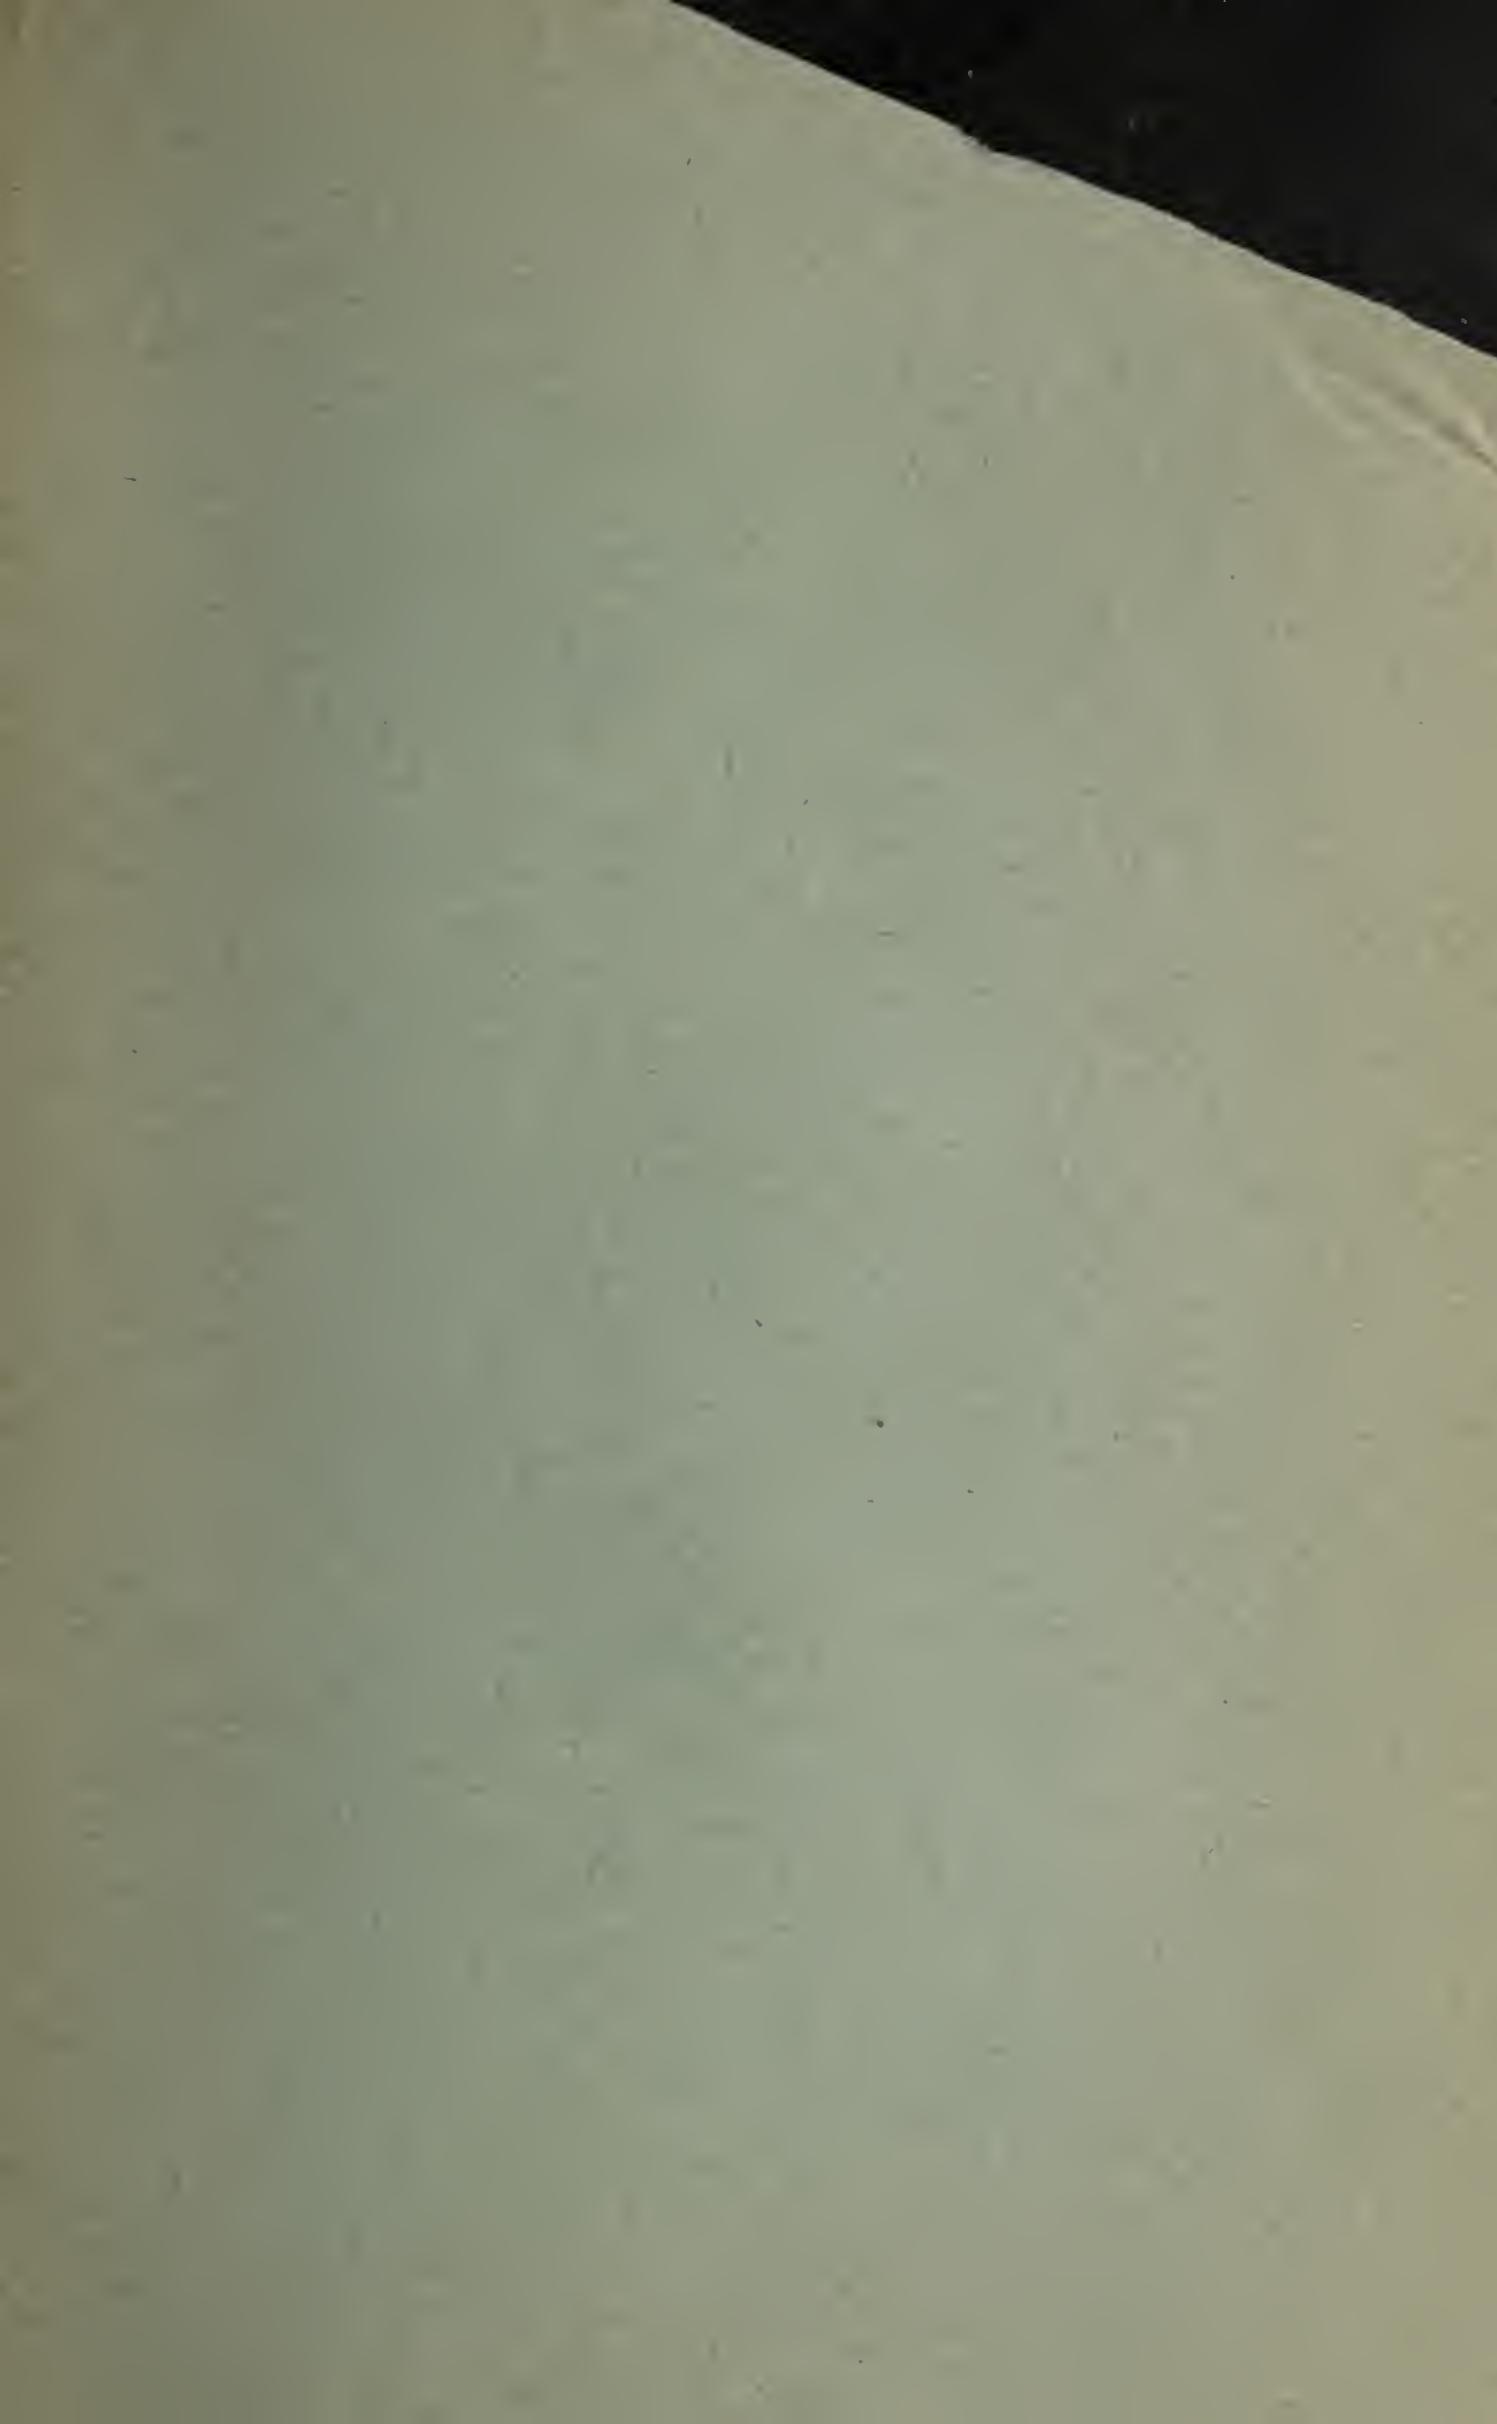

*Buy before the air is stuffy,
Buy before the girls are huffy,
Buy while things are fresh and fluffy—
Buy it now!*

*Tarry not until tomorrow,
Buy it now!*

*Even though you have to borrow,
Buy it now!*

*See that shop-girls don't have reason
To abhor the Christmas season;
Put a conscience, if you please, on—
Buy it now!*

Introduction

The Sears, Roebuck and Co. Library, maintained by Sears, Roebuck and Co. for the use and pleasure of its employees, is located on the first floor of the Administration Building, Room 122. The library opens at 7:30 in the morning and remains open after 5:30 for those who wish to stop for a book on the way home. The shelves contain books of every kind; novels, books on business efficiency, character development, athletics and science. If the book that is needed is not on our shelves, we can send down to the Chicago Public Library and have it sent out, on the daily delivery which is made by the Main Library at 11:30 A. M.

The magazine collection now contains sixty-eight magazines, all of which we circulate, with the exception of those marked starred. Duplicate reference copies of the popular magazines are kept in the magazine case, so that those who care to read at noon may find the magazine they want.

The reference collection now contains about 100 volumes which do not circulate, and gazetteers, year books and almanacs may be used for reference at any time.

USE OF THE LIBRARY

Every employe of Sears, Roebuck and Co. is entitled to one card from the Chicago Public Library, on which the Sears, Roebuck and Co. Books, Deposit or down town books may be taken, and a magazine card on which current magazines are circulated. These cards allow the reader to have five books and a magazine at the same time.

How to Obtain a Card. Come to the library and sign an application blank, or, if you work in another building, send in a request for the application blanks and the librarian will send them.

How to Obtain the Books. After you have your cards, you can select your own books from our shelves or send for books from the Main Library.

Reference Work. If you can not find what you want, the librarian will be glad to give you any assistance possible in getting information, making study lists for reading, or in suggesting good books.

This catalog is a complete list of all the books in the library, both Sears, Roebuck and Co. books and those loaned by the Chicago Public Library. The star indicates the Chicago Public Library books which may be recalled to the Main Library at any time.

Best Books to Read

Bailey, Temple. Mistress Anne.....B155m

Mistress Anne who believes that work is worthy service is the schoolmistress at Crossroads where two men come into her life. She inspires one and loves the other who wins her after leaving an easy fame for a harder service.
—A. L. A. Booklist.

Boltome, P. Second Fiddle.....B659s

Another war love story of two girls in London and one man who is called upon to go as a spy to Germany on his country's service.

Cholomondely, Alice. Christine.....C453c

Christine is a talented English violin student, who goes to Berlin to study under a world famed master. She arrives in May, 1914. Her charmingly vivacious and descriptive letters to her adored mother in England tell the story of the German hostility to everything English. The narrative continues thru' the trying days of July and August until the abrupt end with her death and the close of her love affair with a fascinating Prussian officer.

Conrad, Jos. Shadow Line.....C763s

For those who love a sea story this tale holds the fascination of Conrad's fiction.

"The Spectator aptly calls this a Conradian version of 'The Ancient Mariner.' It is the captain's own story of his first command, his ship becalmed for over two weeks near Siam, with her crew stricken with fever, no quinine, and her chief mate crazed by the haunting memory of her former captain who had been buried at sea right in the path of the outgoing ship. Gives somewhat the same sense of the power of the sea and the wonder of human nature as Youth and The Typhoon."—A. L. A.

Hall, Gert. Aurora the Magnificent.....H142

"Florence of twenty years ago is the setting for this novel of character and contrasts. Aurora is an uneducated Cape Cod woman with money, a naïve ignorance of social amenities and a taste for the wrong things in art. She has a sense of humor and is so genuine and lovable that she wins the regard of the Anglo-American colony and the love of a fastidious and cultivated artist in spite of jealousy and the mystery of her identity."
—A. L. A.

Hemengway, Hetty. Four Days.....H375f

A long short story of the four days' furlough of a young English officer who comes home to marry his American fiancee. The pathos of those four days brings home to us who are just beginning to suffer, an understanding of what we are to endure and in what we are also to glory.

Best Books to Read—Continued

Martin, H. R. Those Fitzenbergers..... M364th

"A past tragedy has outlawed those Fitzenbergers, Pennsylvania Dutch, so that the girl, Liddy, has no friends until the clever new minister and his wife become interested in her. Under her teaching she develops rapidly and writes a remarkable novel which brings her own romance. The setting and details are familiar to the many readers of Mrs. Martin's books. This has the same interest as the others."—A. L. A.

De Maupassant. Second Odd Number..... M445s

This is another series of short stories by the French master of that form of fiction.

Poole, Ernest. His Family..... P785h

"'His Family' consists of the father who is the central figure and his three daughters; the eldest, a mother who will sacrifice any one and anything for her idea of the good of her children; the second, principal of a large school in the tenement house district where she is working out theories of education for the larger family around her; the third, a charming butterfly. Their response to the various phases of New York life today and their father's sympathetic observation and gradual understanding make a most unusual story."—A. L. A.

Rinehart, Mary. Bab—a Sub-deb..... R472b

"Five adventures of Bab who wants a career and dreams of being an author. Her girlish enthusiasms uniquely spelled, she confides to her 'diary' or to a theme, which she says 'should contain Unity, Coherence, Emphasis, Perspicuity, Vivacity and Precision. It may be ornamented with dialogue, description and choice quotations.'"—A. L. A.

Lodge, Sir Oliver. Raymond, or Life and Death. 133.9 L821

"A sincere and poignant human document, which the most convinced and hostile critic of spiritualistic beliefs can only regard with kindness. Sir Oliver Lodge, his wife and sons all contribute their statements of conviction of direct communion with the beloved 'Raymond,' killed in battle a year or more ago in Flanders. The book is a calm and dispassionate statement of their belief in the spiritistic view, and of the certainty of daily communication with 'Raymond.' The opening pages consist of Lieutenant Raymond Lodge's letters from the front, and reveal a fine, courageous personality."—A. L. A.

Scherer. Cotton as a World Power..... 338 Sch28

A most interesting résumé of the part cotton has played in the economic history of our country and the world at large. It will be very interesting to the men in the merchandise departments which handle cotton goods and it is very well written and authoritative.

Farmer's Encyclopaedia. 7 Volumes..... 630.3 F23

This set of seven volumes is a compilation of the best research done along agricultural lines by our government during the last ten years. It includes the government documents and Farmers' Bulletins. It has helped solve many perplexing reference questions on agricultural work and we have made it circulating.

Lynn, Ethel. Adventures of a Woman Hobo.... 917 L98

Dr. Lynn and her husband leave Chicago on a tandem, determined to make their way across the continent to California. It is an interesting tale of hardships and kindnesses along the road and the reader cannot drop the book until he knows that they arrive at the land of their heart's desire.

Empey, Guy. Over the Top..... 940.9 Em74

"One of the most popular war books is 'Over the Top' by Arthur Guy Empey. The writer is an American who was so aroused by the sinking of the Lusitania that he went to England and enlisted in the British army. He was sent to the French front where in June, 1916, he was severely wounded and after hospital treatment, was declared physically unfit for further war service. His book is full of authentic details about the daily life of a private soldier. One reads not only about bombing, trenching, and machine gun work, but also about rations, amusements, drills, and many other minor but important matters. The author says: 'I have tried to tell my experiences in the language of Tommy sitting on the fire step of a front-line trench on the Western Front—just as he would tell his mate next him what was happening at a different part of the line.' The result makes a strong appeal to readers having relatives or friends in the army. Of the hospitals, he writes: 'I can't help saying that the doctors, sisters, and nurses in the English hospitals are angels on earth. I love them all and can never repay the care and kindness shown to me. For the rest of my life the Red Cross will be to me the symbol of Faith, Hope and Charity.'" —Springfield City Library Bulletin.

Hankey, Donald. A Student in Arms..... 940.9 H194

"Twenty short, serious essays, which originally appeared in the London Spectator, written by an Englishman and a member of 'Kitchener's mob.' They deal not so much with actual incidents in the war, as with the soldiers' attitude toward life at the front, toward religion, the church, their officers, and each other."—A. L. A.

Wilson, Woodrow. Why We Are at War..... 940.9 W69

This is a very good little tract for us to read, when there are so many contrary opinions in the air. It contains the four messages sent to Congress and the Senate by President Wilson on January 22, February 3, February 26, and April 2. The President's proclamation of war April 6, 1917, and the message to the American people April 15, 1917.

Magazines in Sears, Roebuck and Co. Library

The following list of magazines includes 72 of the best popular and scientific magazines published. They are here for the use and convenience of library patrons and our regulations for borrowing are most generous. On one card a borrower may take 1 new magazine and 5 old magazines for a period of four days. This is in addition to the regular five book privilege.

The two new cases with the magazines arranged alphabetically make it easy to find the magazine and number you desire. We hope you will take advantage of the new arrangement and use the magazines.

*These are the things I prize
And hold of deepest worth:
Light of the sapphire skies,
Peace of the silent hills,
Shelter of forests, comfort of the grass,
Shadow of clouds that swiftly pass,
Music of birds, murmur of little rills,
And after showers
The smell of flowers,
And of the good brown earth—
And, best of all along the way,
Friendship and mirth.*

Books of Travel Recently Added to Our Library

Baggs, M. Colorado, the Queen Jewel of the Rockies ..... 917.88 B14

"A book that will confirm residents of Colorado in their admiration of the Queen Jewel of the Rockies and make inhabitants of less favored states wish to settle within the shadow of Pike's Peak, or at least see some of the wonders so enthusiastically described."—Outlook.

Bell, Archie. Sunset Canada..... 917.1 B413

"A shrewdly observant and illuminating treatment of that wonderland of the West, British Columbia. Mr. Bell gives vivid accounts of the hunting and fishing, the Indian life of the Province, the fur trading of the Hudson Bay Company, the mining, railroading, and, best of all, the gorgeous scenic beauty of the land."—Book Review Digest.

Chapin, A. A. Greenwich Village..... 917.47 C36

"The author has studied her subject with care and in detail, and the artist has made charming drawings of the Washington arch and Milligan Place of Jefferson Market and old St. John's . . . The contents divide themselves sharply into two parts: Greenwich Village of the past and of the present . . . She sketches briefly the history of the 'Green village' . . . turns abruptly—it would be impossible to make the transition in any other way—to the "Latin Quarter" of today.—New York Times.

Franck, H. Vagabonding Down the Andes..... 918 F84

Being the narrative of a journey chiefly afoot, from Panama to Buenos Aires. The author gives us a description of his four year trip, with his impressions of the native ability to work and reason. Illustrated with many interesting photographs.

James, Geo. California Romantic and Beautiful. 917.94 J23

The history of its Old Missions and of its Indians; a survey of its climate, topography, deserts, mountains, rivers, valleys, islands and coast line; a description of its recreation and festivals; a review of its industries; an account of its influence upon prophets, poets, artists and architects; and some reference to what it offers of delight to the automobilist, traveller, sportsman, pleasure and health seeker.

James, Geo. Arizona the Wonderful..... 917.91 J23

"An enthusiastic and complete study of the state, its history, science, marvels, resources, literature and its possibilities for pleasure and health. Author speaks with an intimate knowledge of the land and its people. Well illustrated with photographs and colored plates."—A. L. A. Booklist.

Mills, Enos. Your National Parks..... 917.87 M62

A complete historical and descriptive guide to National Parks of America.

Books of Travel Recently Added to Our Library—Continued

Winter, N. O. Florida.....917.59 W73

A handsomely illustrated volume of Florida. The author very eloquently tells of the romantic history, which is the "enchantment." He describes with enthusiasm the scenery, the fruits, flowers, birds and alligators, also tells the conditions of education and agriculture.

Henderson, H. A Loiterer in New York.....917.47 H38

A true description of an "idle" in New York. The author brings the art treasures of the city near to us and reminds us that there are still traces of poetry and romance in busy New York.

Murphy, Thos. Oregon, the Picturesque.....917.9 M95

A very picturesque description of Eastern Oregon. Also contains a trip by motor through Northern California, Yosemite, the Roosevelt Dam, and the Petrified Forest of Arizona. Good illustrations.

Shackleton, R. Book of New York.....917.47 Sh12

Author describes New York as "a city young and old." Tells of its landmarks, institutions, authors, superstitions and so brings us the New York as it is to-day, not forgetting the New York of a few centuries past.

Shackleton, R. Book of Boston.....917.44 Sh12

On the same order of author's book of New York. An informal guide through Boston and the near-by towns of New England.

Winter, N. O. Texas.....917.64 W73

A good narrative telling of the history and the struggle for Independence of Texas. Tells of its charms, its missions, ranches, and the most notable cities.

2:09 P. M.—Arrive Lemont.

Vacation and Outing Suggestions—Continued

A quaint old city on the hill in the distance, deserted homes and stone quarries, water-filled gravel pits with tiny islands, a miniature canyon with tiny waterfalls and a spring, an old water wheel—all help to make Lemont picturesque.

6:00 P. M.—Leave Lemont.

7:00 P. M.—Arrive Chicago, Santa Fe Station.

Length of walk, 7 miles. Expense, $1.00.

Glen View to Morton Grove

9:20 A. M.—Leave Chicago, C., M. & St. P. R. R.; Union Station.

10:00 A. M.—Arrive Glen View.

Walk south and east from station to the North Branch, down the creek, keeping on the west side until after passing Golf. Walkers should avoid passing through the grounds of the Golf Club.

5:37 P. M.—Leave Morton Grove, C., M. & St. P. R. R.

6:15 P. M.—Arrive Chicago.

Length of walk—About 7 miles.

Approximate expense—48 cents.

Fullersburg (Riverside Quadrangle)

8:20 or 9:50 A. M.—Leave Chicago, C., B. & Q. R. R.; Union Station.

9:02 or 10:33 A. M.—Arrive Hinsdale.

Walk north to Fullersburg, then around the pond to the west until the picnic ground is reached.
